120-Day Space Flight May Come After Moon Landing

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Space officials said today plans had been made to follow up the Apollo moon landing by orbiting three men around the earth for 120 days.

This newest development in the United States space program came to light in a proposal for a study and construction of an extended mission environmental module between the two sections control and life support system for the Apollo spacecraft.

The three astronauts would travel in a modified version of the Apollo spacecraft, similar to the one scheduled to go to the moon this decade.

Besides modifying the spacecraft, Manned Spacecraft Center officials said, all efforts would be made to use as much Apollo technology and equipment as possible in the new project.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it was hoped by starting the two-year study, the long-flight mission could get under way soon after the first American sets foot on the moon.

Good Friday And Passover Coincide

NEW YORK (AP)—Good Friday, saddest day of the Christian calendar, and the start of Passover, the Jewish festival marking the liberation of the Israelites from Egyptian bondage, coincide today.

Protestant, Catholic and Orthodox churches are holding services at various times today and tonight. Many of them are three-hour services in observance of the three hours of the Crucifixion.

Passover, which emphasizes religious freedom, begins at sundown. It will be observed by Orthodox and Conservative Jews for eight days and by Reform Jews for seven.

Reds Free Two U.S. Fliers But Renew Spy Charges

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING
HELMSTEDT, Germany (UPI)—Two American fliers shot down by Soviet fighter planes over East Germany were released by the Russians today while loudspeakers blared martial music and Red flags flew over the Communist border checkpoint.

Even as the two grim-faced airmen—Capt David I. Holland, 35, of Holland Minn. and Capt Melvin J. Kessler, 30, of Philadelphia—were driven to freedom, the Communists charged the RB66 reconnaissance plane was on a spy flight.

At Johnson City, Tex., President Johnson expressed pleasure and gratification at the fliers' release. White House press secretary George Reedy said Johnson was "pleased that this matter has been sensibly settled."

Reedy added that the President was notified immediately when the men were freed and said that both are in good condition.

Minutes after the two fliers returned to the West 17 days after their jet plane was shot down when it strayed across the border into East Germany, the Communist news agency carried a statement about their release.

It said Communist authorities act with U.S. bases until they were shot down.

ADN said investigation of the wreckage showed the RB66 "carried out espionage" before crewmen after Washington was shot down by Soviet fighters. It said the fliers "were preparing themselves in their statements improvement of U.S.-Soviet relations."

Three Killed, 33 Injured In Bus-Truck Collision

DENVER (AP)—A heavily loaded Continental Trailways bus smashed into the side of a Colorado Highway Department dump truck Thursday night.

The drivers of both vehicles and a little girl riding in the front seat of the bus were killed. Thirty-three persons were injured, none of them seriously.

Victims were Earl Chamberlain, 32, Denver, the bus driver; Carl Lewis Hicken, 32, Hideaway Park, Colo., the truck driver; and Pamela Jo Grant, 4, of Louisville, Ky.

The truck pulled onto U.S. Highway 6 in front of the bus at an intersection in Jefferson County, in the southwestern suburbs of Denver.

"I don't think he was 10 feet from us when he pulled out," Ray Russell, 73, of Toledo, Ohio said.

Russell said the bus driver "didn't have a chance in the world to stop."

The bus, east-bound from San Francisco and Salt Lake City, was going only 30 or 35 miles an hour, the passenger said.

The Grant child was riding with her mother, Mrs. Mary Grant, in the front seat of the bus on the right side.

Murray Jacob Gould, 35, of Boston, was across the aisle from Pamela, whom he described as "a little blonde girl and beautiful."

Gould was talking with the child and did not see the truck.

After the crash, Gould said, he carried a small boy and another little girl out a window. They were not badly hurt. He said he did not see Pamela again.

The force of the wreck jammed the front doors and all passengers were helped or lifted through windows. There were 40 passengers aboard, along with the driver, a stewardess, Miss Karen Hadsall, 19, of Wichita, Kan., and another bus employee, Miss Hadsall was not injured.

Wrecker crews and workmen with torches cut away the front of the bus to remove the driver's body.

Eight persons were admitted to the hospital. The other injured persons were treated and released.

The eight in the hospital are Chester Banning, 67, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Margaret Banning, 65, his wife; Miss Elizabeth Taber, 82, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Theresa Shipman, 32, of Denver.

Mac Arthur's Inflammation Still 'Same'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army doctors kept a close watch today on the inflammation that has lodged at the base of the right lung of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

The condition was discovered Thursday and antibiotics were administered against this added threat to the recovery of the 84-year-old general from two major operations within 17 days.

At last report, doctors said the situation was essentially the same and could add no new evaluation of the general's condition.

Presumably, his condition remains as it was two days ago—seriously ill, but improved from his extremely critical condition Monday after emergency surgery.

The general came to Walter Reed Army Medical Center with severe jaundice, was operated on March 6 for removal of gall stones and gall bladder.

Woman Marked 'Martyr' But Barred From Church

By ROBERT COOKE
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge has ruled that Betty Chapman—"the type of whom martyrs were made"—may never attend her church again.

Mrs. Chapman, 41, was accused of deliberately singling out key, loudly, and making faces at the pastor during services at nearby Mar Vista Baptist church.

Superior Court Judge McIntyre Faries ruled Thursday that "Mrs. Chapman had disturbed the church in its worship and activities. Were she permitted to return, though she intends well, she would again—in the absence of change in church leadership and control—disturb it."

"The facts are sufficient to warrant injunctive relief," Earlier, Judge Faries had commented: "I have great admiration for Mrs. Chapman as an individual. She is the type of whom martyrs were made in the days of the early church."

Mrs. Chapman's problems began with a disagreement with her pastor, the Rev. Wayne Eurich, in 1960. The following year the church obtained a temporary injunction prohibiting her, her husband and daughter from attending services. They had been voted out of the congregation, but refused to quit attending.

Judge Faries earlier this month refused to issue a permanent injunction against the husband, John, 49, and daughter, Connie Ray, 22. He said there was insufficient evidence they were guilty of misconduct.

Door Left Open For Strike at NORAD Project

A Denver U.S. district judge left the door open Thursday for carpenters to strike the NORAD Hardsite under Cheyenne Mountain.

Judge William E. Doyle refused to issue a preliminary injunction to forestall picketing at the Combat Operations Center.

The injunction has been asked by the National Labor Relations Board while it investigates a jurisdictional dispute.

J. O. Veteto, local plastering contractor, claimed that Carpenter Local 515, the Southern Colorado Building and Construction Trades Council and the Carpenters District Council of Southern Colorado were threatening to strike unless he allowed them men to install steel studs for drywall rather than giving the work to members of Lathers Local 48.

Judge Doyle said in his opinion that the carpenters' groups protested forcefully but did not threaten or force Veteto.

Motorcyclist Critical After Striking Auto

A 24-year old man whose motorcycle struck a car at Hancock and Platte Avenues Thursday afternoon was still in critical condition this morning with multiple fractures, including a skull fracture.

Robert Carroll Sumpter, 502 E. Pikes Peak Ave. was rushed to Memorial Hospital by E and E Ambulance after the accident. Also at the hospital was Sumpter's wife, Zelma Ethel Sumpter, 26, who suffered multiple contusions, lacerations and abrasions. She was a passenger on the back of the motorcycle when the accident occurred.

Police said Sumpter was going east on Platte when his vehicle hit the left rear door of a northbound car driven by Hugo Carl Kapelke, 63, of 225 E. Monument St. The accident happened at 2:50 p.m.

Sumpter is employed as a bartender at the Honeybucket, 504 E. Pikes Peak Ave.

Fidel Actually Helped U.S. in Water Situation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fidel Castro unwittingly helped the United States when he cut off the water supply to the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo, according to a water expert.

The act of the Cuban dictator brought home to 180 million Americans the vital need for plenty of good, clean water in "For they are fast outgrowing maintaining human life, says their long-time sources of support Robert F. Orth, director, National Water Institute.

Orth said the crisis will not stem from any lack of water communities this year will have in the nation. Rather, it will be to cope with an acute water shortage problem. Use will be equipment and facilities to drastically cut and other emergency measures taken. But—unlike the Navy base which had isn't planned ahead for its crisis—He blamed the shortage of these communities will be totally unprepared.

The entire nation faces a serious water crisis by 1984 if the levels of education that promote American public doesn't recognize greater personal hygiene; and size the problems of tremendous urban growth and take appropriate action now. Orth said

Civil Rights Bill Backers Will Begin Talking

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate backers of the civil rights bill take the floor starting Monday to tell of the merits they see in the measure.

Assistant Senate Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota passed that word to newsmen after Thursday's vote to make the bill the Senate's pending business.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Southern senators who blasted the measure through 16 days of speechmaking in opposition even to taking up the bill, said his forces probably would be biding their time next week.

But he insisted his side had lost only a skirmish in Thursday's voting and declared: "We shall now begin to fight the war."

Both Humphrey and Russell agreed there would be no votes next week, although the Georgia senator said foes of the bill might introduce some of their proposed amendments.

Shortly after the Senate took its second vote Thursday, the Rev. Martin Luther King held a news conference at the Capitol and announced plans for "direct action" protests if Southern senators filibuster against the civil rights bill.

He declined to say what form the protest might take.

In answer to a question, the Negro civil rights leader said "at this point I would not say that civil disobedience would become necessary." Adding that "civil disobedience could become necessary" to dramatize the issues, he stated he is an advocate of nonviolence.

When the Senate debate resumes Monday, the bipartisan bloc supporting the bill plans to be ready to lay down a complete case for all 11 titles of the measure.

In Thursday's voting, the Senate first agreed 67 to 17 to take up the bill formally for debate. Then, in what was regarded as the first real test, the Senate voted 50 to 34 to kill a move by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to send the measure to the Judiciary Committee until April 8.

Humphrey conceded that the vote to table this referral motion was somewhat bigger than the bill's supporters had anticipated. He credited church groups with winning extra support.

Russell, declaring that his side was fighting "overwhelming odds," said that ministers from all over the nation were arriving in Washington in relays "demanding that senators resolve all constitutional doubts by voting in favor of the bill."

After the second vote, they took a brief Easter recess Monday.

Newsman Will Write Book of Assassination

By LARRY OSIUS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "authoritative" book on events surrounding John F. Kennedy's assassination will open with a White House reception and close with the President's widow receiving foreign dignitaries five days later in the black draped executive mansion.

It will be written by William Manchester during the next three to five years. Mrs. John F. Kennedy personally selected him for the job although she had never met him, a family announcement said Thursday.

Manchester, managing editor of the Wesleyan University Press at Middletown, Conn., is the author of "Portrait of a President," a book on Kennedy published in 1962.

Mrs. Kennedy members of the slain President's family, President Johnson and eyewitnesses to the Nov. 22 slaying of Kennedy in Dallas will be interviewed for the book. Mrs. Kennedy hopes the book will be the authoritative story of her husband's death. The announcement said: "Because versions of what occurred Nov. 20-25 already have appeared and because it is understood other articles and books are in the course of being prepared for later publication, these arrangements were made with Mr. Manchester in the interest of historical accuracy and to prevent distortion and sensationalism."

Manchester said Thursday he plans to open the book with the Nov. 20 judiciary reception in the White House and conclude it with Mrs. Kennedy's reception of foreign dignitaries there on Nov. 25, after Kennedy's funeral.

He said he will begin conversations with her as soon as possible, while her recollections are fresh.

Manchester told newsmen he was surprised when Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, relayed Mrs. Kennedy's wishes in February. He said he had not met the former First Lady, even when

Glenn Limited In Campaign By His Injury

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

Ohio's Democratic U.S. senatorial race between Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. and Sen. Stephen M. Young drew taut today. A Marine Corps announcement indicated that Glenn, injured in a fall here Feb. 26, might not be sufficiently recovered to retire from the Marines by April 1.

This would sharply limit the former astronaut's campaign for nomination in the May 5 primary.

Young's campaign manager asserted that if the election were held now, Sen. Young, 74, would win handily.

Glenn headquarters in Columbus appeared undismayed by Marine Gen. Wallace Greene's statement Thursday that "I'm sure he is not going to be able to retire by April 1."

Ford Eastman, who left the space agency to aid Glenn's campaign, declined immediate comment but indicated the situation might become cleared by Monday. He did not elaborate.

Regardless of developments, Glenn's name will remain on Ohio ballots, making his nomination possible without returning to Ohio election officials pointed out.

Glenn's fall against a bathtub caused injury to his inner ear, producing nausea and dizziness that often takes many weeks to cure, Eastman explained.

The astronaut has been in a San Antonio Tex. military hospital since March 6.

Shortly before the Marine commandant's statement, Howard Metzgerbaum, Young's campaign manager, asserted that the senator had pulled ahead in the Ohio race.

If the primary election were held now, Young would win the nomination handily in practically every county, he said.

HUNTING and FISHING

By DICK MOORE

Despite tough hunting conditions during the 1963 big game season Colorado hunters took home more deer and elk than they did in the record year of 1961.

Gilbert N. Hunter, state game manager with the Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department, reports that 147,848 mule deer were killed in Colorado during the '63 season, about 500 more than were harvested in the previous all-time-high year of 1961. And 12,120 elk were harvested at the same time, compared to 11,743 taken in 1961, the previous record year for elk.

Hunter says the 1963 record-breaking mule deer kill was due mainly to the good post seasons held on the Western Slope. Usually, the post seasons do not materially affect the season total, but in '63 the weather conditions during the post seasons were good with hunters taking full advantage of the situations pushing the kill figures to the new record high.

The elk figures hit a new high mainly due to the February pre-season held along the eastern edge of Rocky Mountain National Park. Almost 500 elk were taken during this early season, accounting almost entirely for the increase over the 1961 record.

"Good as last season was," Hunter concluded, "1964 could be even better. This has been the third straight mild winter in Colorado and our deer and elk herds are in good shape going into the spring months. With a break in the weather this fall we could have the best hunting season ever."

Colorado's spring bear season opens statewide Wednesday so hunt out your hounds and sharpen up their noses. The entire state, except for a portion of Hinsdale, LaPlata and San Juan counties is open to bear hunters from Wednesday through Sept. 15.

Hunters are required to purchase a special bear license to pursue the black brutes. Resident licenses are $5 and non-resident licenses are $10. The license entitles the holder to one bear during the season.

The surest and fastest way to strike the trail of "Old Man Bruin" is with a pack of dogs. And it's perfectly legal, except that if you use more than one dog, Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department regulations require that you be accompanied by a licensed guide.

Hunting hours are from one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset.

This year's mid-winter continental waterfowl survey showed an increase of 17 per cent over last year, according to information released by the Department of the Interior. Each year, the survey is conducted on the continental waterfowl populations to determine the distribution of waterfowl in relation to the condition of wintering habitat. The number of birds observed by state game and fish department, Fish and Wildlife Service personnel and other participants was 17 per cent above the number of birds observed in the survey last year.

There was a considerable increase in the number of waterfowl seen in the Central Flyway, especially in South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Texas. However, the largest increase was noted in southern portions of the Mississippi Flyway, particularly in southwestern Louisiana, where favorable marsh conditions attracted large numbers of ducks.

The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife pointed out that increases or decreases in numbers of birds observed during the winter survey does not necessarily indicate a corresponding change in bird populations. Visibility conditions, observers, and habitat conditions vary from year to year, affecting the reliability of the observations. Breeding ground surveys in the spring have proven to be the most reliable means of determining the population status of breeding ducks.

The value of habitat improvement on waterfowl populations was demonstrated in Louisiana this year by an increase of approximately 3 million birds over 1963. A summer drought, followed by the timely reflooding of the marshes by fall rains and the extension of rice farming into new areas made Louisiana especially attractive to waterfowl.

The annual survey indicated that observations of waterfowl were up 34.4 per cent in the Central Flyway, 1.2 per cent in

"The average inactive American man when he reaches age 26 has a middle-age body."

This shocking statement comes from an authority on physical fitness—after studying more than 50,000 individuals. Why this early physical decline? Lack of activity—not enough vigorous daily exercise. Today, our children risk all the hazards of easy living. Right now, in fact, one-third of them are unable to pass simple physical achievement tests. That's why it's so important for all youngsters to participate in vigorous exercise for at least 15 minutes during each school day. Police this morning were also investigating two other theft cases. A .25 caliber pistol was stolen from the car of Dr. Lee Arnold Steele, 2001 Cragmor Rd., while the car was parked in back of Memorial Hospital Thursday morning.

A sweater worth $15 was stolen from Ray Vigil Seese, 2412 Byers St. Seese told police he hung the sweater in the locker room at the Bowl - Mor Lanes, 31 W. Las Vegas St., and it was stolen while he was bowling. A set of keys was also taken with the sweater.

Love Will Seek Federal Aid in Wind Erosion

DENVER (UPI)—Gov. John Love planned to call Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman or one of Freeman's aides today to try to get federal help for Colorado farmers and ranchers hit by wind erosion.

Love said Thursday it was unbelievable that the federal funds had not yet been granted to 13 eastern Colorado counties.

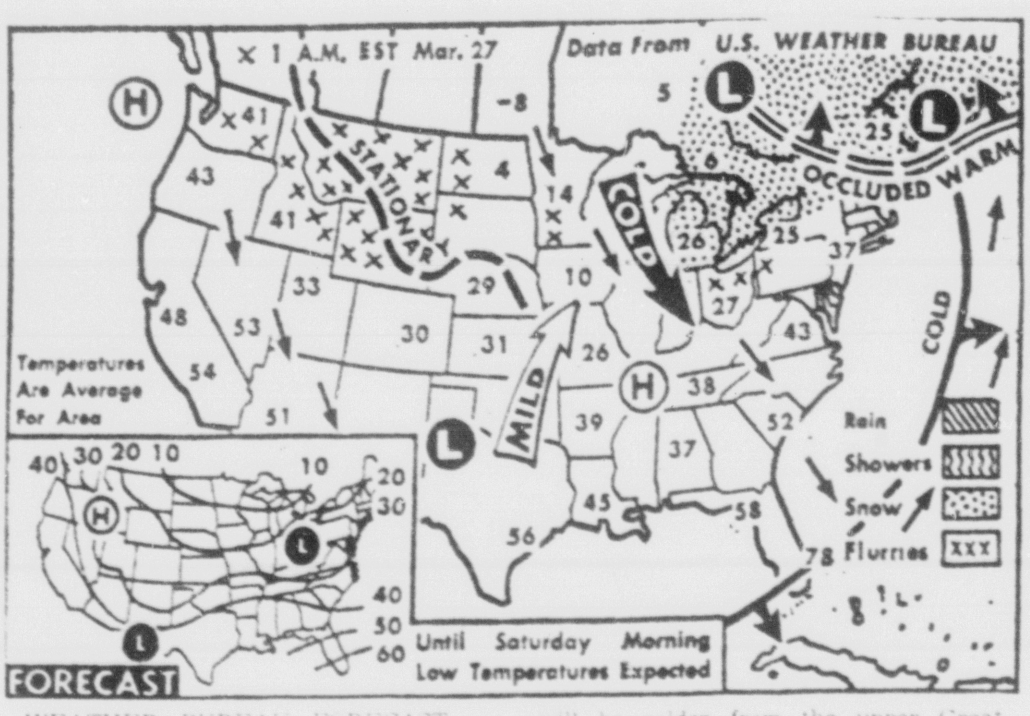

The State Disaster Committee of the Agricultural Soil Conservation Service asked for the federal help early last month. Love said the government had not answered the request.

"I am amazed that the Department of Agriculture has not seen fit to go ahead," Love said. "The only program that I know of that would help these people would be to get some emergency tillage money from the federal government as soon as possible." State Agriculture Commissioner Paul Swisher said in a letter to Love.

Swisher said he had been swamped by letters from residents of Eastern Colorado asking about the request.

New Canal Across Isthmus May Be Dug With Bombs

EDITOR'S NOTE—Even before this year's violent anti-American outbursts in the Panama Canal Zone, U.S. scientists sought an economical means of excavating a new canal between the Atlantic and Pacific. Atomic power may hold the secret to a great new lock-free Isthmian canal. Here is a report on efforts in this direction by an author of a number of authoritative works on tunnels, canals and bridges.

By JOSEPH GIES
Written For Associated Press

Recent flag-raising riots in the Canal Zone focused attention on our famous Atlantic-Pacific link. But by raising emotional temperatures in Central America and in the United States, the riots blurred the real problem of the future of the Panama Canal. That future is tied up closely with nuclear explosives. Not bombs—but excavation by nuclear-powered blasting.

If this is done, it would be probably the most important engineering development of the second half of the 20th Century. Though much experimentation and study remains to be done, there is no longer any doubt that we are on the threshold of very important uses of nuclear power for peacetime purposes. The first major theater for use of this tremendous new engineering tool could well be the Central American Isthmus.

The existing Panama Canal is no longer adequate to shipping needs. A lock canal, it carries ships up and over the Isthmus of Panama by a series of steps, each of which requires lock opening and pumping.

A ship cannot navigate through the locks. It must be towed and maneuvered by a team of six locomotives at two miles an hour.

With forecasts of continuing increases in traffic, a bigger, wider, deeper, sea-level canal without locks seems to be imperative.

The pressure for a big, sea-level canal has been growing for years. In 1957, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries appointed a board of consultants—engineers—to investigate and report. After studying the question the board found that the cheapest solution possible with conventional engineering methods would be deepening and widening the present canal, converting it to a sea-level waterway. The cost: nearly $3 billion.

Maj. Gen. W. E. Potter, then governor of the Canal Zone and a member of the board, wondered if there wasn't a better alternative. Just about the time that the board of consultants had been given his task another group of experts had received another mission. This was the Atomic Energy Commission's "Project Plowshare," aimed at exploring the potential of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes.

Picked as the home base of Project Plowshare was the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the University of California. To the Lawrence Laboratory, in 1960, Potter addressed a query: What would be the cost of digging a sea-level canal in the Central American Isthmus by nuclear power?

The experts at the Lawrence Laboratory gave an encouraging, though qualified, reply. If the cheapest potential route were used, that from Sardinia to Morin, in Panama, an entirely new, wide, sea-level canal could be dug for about $800 million—as compared to $3 billion for converting the present canal.

Since 1960 some very important developments have taken place. When last November Secretary of State Dean Rusk, chairman of the joint Committee on Atomic Energy, queried Dr. Gerald J. Lawrence, Laboratory for Plowshare, Johnson was able to give a considerably more specific answer.

The cost contained the figures from the 1960 estimate. And the fallout danger was greatly diminished, with the vanishing point possibly in sight. In the light of Johnson's reply to Potter, in fact, it seems all but inevitable that a new, bigger, deeper Isthmian Canal will eventually be dug by nuclear excavation—though Johnson emphasizes that five years of development, explosives production and cratering experiments must be carried out first.

Johnson estimates the cost of a nuclear-excavated sea-level canal at no more than $500 million.

U.N. Establishes Military Force For Cyprus Peace

By ALEX EFTY

NICOIA, Cyprus (AP)—British and Canadian troops put on blue berets and the U.N. flag rose over their camps today, marking the birth of the United Nations Force in Cyprus.

Indian Lt. Gen. Prem Singh Giani took command at dawn and assumed responsibility on behalf of the United Nations for keeping Greek and Turkish Cypriots from killing each other.

To begin his task, Giani has 6,000 British and 1,000 Canadian soldiers. About half the British force will be withdrawn as Irish, Finnish and Swedish soldiers join the U.N. force shortly. An advance party of Swedes and Finns is due tonight.

Giani, former commander of the U.N. Emergency Force in the Middle East, told the Canadians Thursday:

"Our one and simple aim is to do everything possible to assist them (the Cypriots) in preventing a recurrence of hostilities and ensuring that they resume their problems under peaceful conditions. We must be absolutely impartial in whatever we do."

Maj. Gen. R.M.P. Carver, British commander on Cyprus, also donned a blue U.N. beret to become Giani's second in command.

Except for the new headgear and change in top command, the British Tommies carried on as usual at scattered posts throughout the 140-mile-long island. But the Canadians began their first peace-keeping patrols, with two companies assigned to the Nicosia suburb of Trabonias, a frequent trouble spot between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

The U.N. command has not disclosed its orders from Secretary-General U. Thant. It was not known whether Giani could direct his men to shoot, search or disarm any Cypriots.

Thant reported to the Security Council in New York Thursday he expects the Cypriot government to cooperate with Giani.

"I want to emphasize that this force is a U.N. force, operating exclusively under the mandate of the Security Council and the instructions of the secretary-general," he said.

Among the Canadians there seemed little doubt as to their reaction if fired upon.

"We'll shoot back even if we don't have any orders on it," said Lance Cpl. Claude Gravel, 24, of Montreal. Another Canadian said most of the contingent felt the same way.

A Canadian lieutenant said the force needs more authority than the British had. "It won't solve anything if we don't get it," he said.

Navy police also turned up with orders to arrest Anslemo. They agreed to let the corporal go ahead with his speech and take him into custody after the meeting. But then the men decided to stay in the building to prevent Anslemo's arrest, and the police finally left without the corporal.

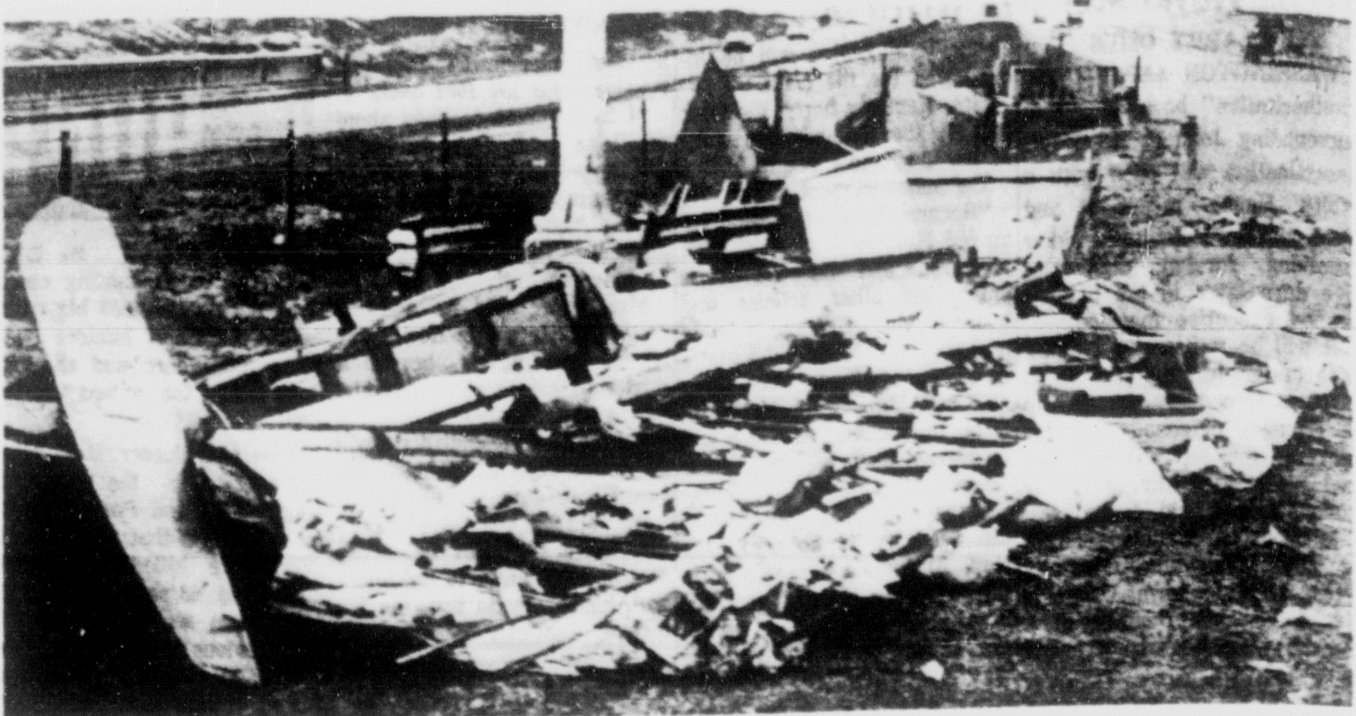

Anslemo, a vocal supporter of constitutional reforms, advocated by Goulart, devoted his speech to a call for immediate passage of such government legislation as a bill to give the vote to enlisted men and allow them to run for public office.

Early Thursday, when the navy policemen returned empty-handed and the dissidents were still holed up, about 300 marines were sent to the building to arrest the men. The dissidents urged the marines to lay down their machine guns and join their strike. About 30 marines did so. The others were returned to their barracks. Similarly a battalion of military police with 10 tanks and another contingent of marines were sent to the scene, then withdrawn.

Sailors, Marines Strike in Brazil Over Arrest

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—About 3,000 rebellious sailors and marines spent their second night holed up in a downtown building after Silvio Moto, Brazilian navy minister, resigned from office for failing to get them out.

Moto handed in his resignation Thursday night after failing to persuade the dissident enlisted men to end their sit-in strike, which began Wednesday night in support of a marine corporal ordered arrested for political activities.

Rear Adm. Luis Felipe Sinal, appointed commander of the marine corps only Thursday by Moto, told newsmen he also planned to resign.

Government strategy appeared to be to wait for the dissidents to tire of their strike and leave the building voluntarily—out of hunger if nothing else. There was believed to be no food in the building, and a number of the men shouted from windows, "We are starving!"

The government's apparent decision to take no action that might provoke a crisis in the armed forces was demonstrated Thursday night in the withdrawal of marines who had been posted around the building.

President Joao Goulart was spending Easter at his ranch at Sao Borja and there was no indication that he planned to come to Rio.

The rebels yelled to onlookers that they were staying put to prevent the arrest of Cpl. Jose Anslemo, whose arrest had been ordered for violating service regulations against making political speeches while on active duty.

Anslemo is president of the Association of Sailors and Marines. He and the other navy men went on Wednesday to the building, which houses a union hall, to celebrate the association's second anniversary.

Navy police also turned up with orders to arrest Anslemo. They agreed to let the corporal go ahead with his speech and take him into custody after the meeting. But then the men decided to stay in the building to prevent Anslemo's arrest, and the police finally left without the corporal.

Music Soothes Savage Beasts On Florida Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—City officials figure if "music soothes the savage beast" it may help calm an expected influx of 75,000 restless college students migrating south on their annual Easter vacation.

The experiment seems to be working. Though police say arrests are averaging about 100 a day, mostly on minor charges, this represents only a small percentage of the estimated 50,000 students in the area.

Al Garguilo, director of the city recreation department, estimates another 25,000 students migrating from their winter-chilled schools in the north, will swell the total to 75,000 by this weekend.

City fathers feel they may have the answer in music to this potentially explosive situation—which in past years has erupted into riots, near riots and mass arrests here and at Fort Lauderdale.

The music experiment was inaugurated Wednesday night when some 6,500 of the vacationing students attended a combination folk music-jazz concert at the city's band shell.

The students' confined their reactions to standing ovations when a performance pleased them.

Young Smokers Rebel Against Authority

High school students who smoke are less well adjusted to adult authority than nonsmoking students, a recent study shows.

A total of 304 seniors, aged 16 and 17, attending the Newton, Mass., Public High School were given a group psychological test in an attempt to measure personality differences between those who smoked, or never smoked.

The results were reported by Eva J. Salber, M.D., and Joan E. Rochman, Ed. M., Boston. In the current Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

Among boys, smokers, and particularly heavy smokers, were found to have less satisfactory relationships with authority in general and parents in particular than did nonsmokers.

Ideal Weather Reported in Colorado Areas

The weather couldn't be better in Colorado today, no matter how you looked at it.

Lower elevations generally were fair and mild while the mountains, where the state stores its water, were getting heavy snow. Skiers were not unhappy, either.

Arapahoe Ski Area reported 18 inches of new snow and 10 inches or more was reported at Berthoud, Breckenridge, Indianhead, Monarch, Ski Idlewild and Winter Park ski areas.

Lighter snow fell during the morning along the Western Slope of the Continental Divide.

Mountain passes, the State Patrol said, were generally snowpacked and icy.

Forecasters said temperatures over the state during the next five days, including Easter Sunday, should be mild. Occasional light snow was predicted for the mountains.

Lamar's 58 degrees was the warmest in Colorado Thursday, but many other places in the state had readings in the forties and a few had temperatures in the lower fifties. La Junta had a high Thursday of 57.

Pope Observes Good Friday In St. Peter's

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI sheds his shoes and prostrates himself before the barren main altar of St. Peter's Basilica today as millions of Christians throughout the world observe Good Friday.

The Pope's act of humble devotion marks his mourning for Christ's death on the cross. It comes during the special Good Friday Mass—"The Mass of the Pre-Sanctified." No organ sounds and no church bells ring during Christendom's most sorrowful day.

Even the choir is muted and mournful as it chants the slow, sad verses of the "Improperia"—the reproaches of Christ.

"O my people, what have I done to thee? Or wherein have I afflicted thee?"

Garbed in vestments of red, the Pope removes his shoes and genuflects on his knees three times.

The Pope also will lead a torchlight procession through the ancient colosseum tonight to recall Christ's journey to Calvary.

Pope Paul followed Christ's actual way to the cross in Jerusalem Jan. 4, walking along the Via Dolorosa—the Street of Sorrows—amid a frantic mob scene during his visit to the Holy Land.

The nearly 2,000-year-old Colosseum has special meaning because it was once the scene of wild Roman spectacles in which early Christian martyrs were tossed to the lions.

Thousands of Christian pilgrims gathered in Old Jerusalem for Western Easter rites, Greek Orthodox and other Eastern Christian churches using the Julian Calendar will commemorate Easter five weeks later.

The Western sects prepared for a huge Good Friday procession along the Via Dolorosa which twists through the market places and past the stone houses in the ancient city.

Elsewhere around the world Christian churches were symbolically draped in black. In most Christian countries, Good Friday was a legal holiday. In Communist-governed Poland, a predominantly Catholic country, even the streetscars halted.

In Paris, more than 2 million Frenchmen had left the capital for the weekend. Skiers flocked the slopes in Scandinavia, and ministers on skis conducted services in the countryside.

Processions wound through most of the cities and towns of Spain. Ancient religious relics were carried on floats or on the shoulders of Catholic laymen.

Business and government activity halted in the Philippines. Asia's only Roman Catholic country. Some 100,000 persons flocked to the mountain resort of Baguio, 125 miles north of Manila.

Southern Baptists Split On Civil Rights Proposals

By TOM CHASE
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Southern Baptists see both a challenge and what they termed an attempt to coerce the people into backing a move for more federal power in President Johnson's appeal for support of a strong civil rights bill.

The response was divided and varied from region to region. The President told a Southern Baptist leadership seminar in Washington Wednesday that the civil rights cause "demands prophets in our time, men of compassion and truth, unafraid of the consequences of fulfilling their faith."

James Duncan of Washington, editor of the church publication Capital Baptist, said most of those present felt Johnson's statement might move Southern Baptists to do more about the problem.

"Everyone there seemed to feel he hit the nail right on the head and gave us a challenge," Duncan said.

"One hates to think the President should have to remind a nominal religious group what their responsibility is but perhaps it was needed," Duncan added.

Some Baptist leaders in Alabama didn't think so, however. Dr. George E. Bagley, executive secretary of the Baptist Executive Board and Dr. Leon Macon, president of the Alabama Baptist State Convention, said in a joint.

"Our President is obviously trying to coerce the people in the nation into backing his move to enlarge federal power to the point where our freedom to choose our associates and neighbors will be placed in the hands of the bureaucrats."

"We cannot in good conscience endorse this bill. We urge the 750,000 Baptists in Alabama to study its inherent dangers, and decide for themselves."

The Southern Baptists claim 10 million members. In the words of the president, "No group of Christians has greater responsibility for civil rights."

But Dr. Henry Lyon, pastor of a Montgomery, Ala., Baptist Church, said, "I am unalterably opposed to the civil rights bill in its form now. It is not a good bill for either race. This is an hour of political hysteria."

I think the President was of order," said the Rev. Harold W. Seever, of Mobile, Ala.

chairman of the executive board of the Southern Baptist Convention. He suggested individuals express their convictions to their representatives in Congress.

The president of the North Carolina Baptist Convention, the Rev. Howard J. Ford of Wilmington, said he expected a divided response despite the fact many want to cooperate.

Stabber's Kin Apologize to American Envoy

TOKYO (AP)—Looking subdued and embarrassed, the parents and elder brother of the Japanese boy who stabbed U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer apologized to American minister John K. Emmerson at the U.S. Embassy on Friday.

The three arrived in a Japanese police car to extend regrets four days almost to the hour after the 53-year-old envoy was slashed with a six-inch blade by mentally deficient Norikazu Shotani, 19, of Numazu.

"We have no words to convey our profound apologies to Ambassador Reischauer and the United States of America for our third son Norikazu, who committed this grave offense, and for our own failure to provide him with adequate supervision," said the father Mitsugu Shotani, 65.

We pray from the bottom of our hearts for the speedy and complete recovery of Ambassador Reischauer.

The apology was delivered orally and in writing to Emmerson in the ambassador's office. Emmerson, the No. 2 man at the embassy, received the three gently and urged them to be seated. He told them that he was representing the ambassador and his Japanese-born wife and would transmit the message and explain the feelings of the Shotani family to the stricken diplomat. He is in a Tokyo hospital and progressing, a 10 a.m. bulletin said "smoothly."

Japanese police yesterday charged the youth with inflicting bodily injury and trespassing. The case was turned over to the Tokyo district prosecutor's office to determine, after a psychiatric examination, whether the youth should be sent to a mental institution or stand trial.

Maximum penalty for inflicting bodily injury is 10 years in prison and for trespassing three years.

Premier Hayato Ikeda called on the ambassador Thursday to apologize.

"It seems strange that the president would ask ministers to use their high office for political purposes — to support him in something that is not as American as you might think."

The president of the Georgia Baptist Convention, Dr. J. Thornton Williams of La Grange said that "Southern Baptists and state conventions through the years have offered guidance to our people in the area of solving these problems that confront them. All we can do is to seek to guide."

And the Rev. Ross Coins of Nashville, Tenn., director of Communications for the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, sponsor of the seminar, said.

"As far as the race problem is concerned, I would agree with the participant in our meeting who said, 'It's time for Southern Baptists to join the human race.'"

African Declares Reds Look Good Only Outside

By JOHN WEYLAND
BERKRAITH, Germany (AP)—Communism only looks good from the outside," says Balogun O'Neill.

He is from Sierra Leone, in Africa, and is one of about 600 students from developing countries who have fled to West Germany from the Communist bloc in the past few years.

O'Neill was put up at the reception center for these students maintained at Wickrath, a small town near the Rhine city of Dusseldorf. After an average stay of six weeks, they are placed in special preparatory courses or directly in West German universities to continue their education.

The foreign ministry fools the bill, which runs about $500,000 annually.

West Germany is the only European country that carries out a program like this for the young refugees—average age 23—from Communist higher education. Some get here on the pretext of taking a vacation. Others are allowed to leave Eastern Europe after making clear their disillusionment.

Of the total, three quarters come from Africa. Ghana is the leading contributor, with 145 Kenya is next with 44. A handful are sent on to the United States, but few show interest in this because of what they have heard about the race problems there.

The students' own governments are often less than keen about the switch. Communist scholarships are valued as a way of getting an education that will help develop the home country. The ideological risk is accepted as part of the bargain.

Ghana, Kenya, Sudan, and Ethiopia all have attempted to keep their students put, but without great success.

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government expects the students to render valuable services in keeping Africa from going Communist, since they are likely to become influential men after their return home.

The defectors in West Germany, like the estimated 35,000 students from developing countries still studying in the Communist bloc, come predominantly from the poor families.

O'Neill, an earnest agricultural student, is typical of young men who pass through the Wickrath reception center. He went to Moscow three years ago impressed by Sputniks and Communist propaganda. He left Moscow's Patrice Lumumba University in disgust after the demonstrations of Africans in January against their treatment by Soviet authorities.

Interviewed here, O'Neill spoke of lack of freedom, a dreary life, and prejudice among Soviets.

"It got me down that public criticism of the government and system was never allowed," O'Neill said. "Then there was so little to buy, to do. If we ever got a chance to go out with a girl, the Russians would stare at us and make nasty remarks. And when it came to dealing with the authorities, they refused to treat us like grownups."

The West German Federal Students Federation says the dark-skinned students sit side by side with West Germans in classrooms and mix freely with them socially.

The long presence of American troops has accustomed the West German people to Negroes.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Savage Arguments Countered

We have another letter from Dorman Savage which appears elsewhere on this page.

At the outset, Mr. Savage seeks to establish that reason is not a good base for the development of a philosophy. If this is true, does it mean that he is advocating non-reason? It would appear so.

He says that reason apparently has taught us that both government and murder are incorrect. In this assumption he is right.

The REASON we object to murder is because it is destructive of human well-being. The REASON we object to government is because, through its mechanism, human well-being is injured.

Next, Mr. Savage wants us to believe that man is basically evil. If this is true, then Mr. Savage is basically evil and we can REASONABLY reject his counsel for it would be evil.

He seeks to base his argument here on the Biblical quotation from Romans 3:10-20. "There is none righteous, no one." Nor did we ever suggest that any man is WHOLLY righteous. But the Bible neither in Romans nor elsewhere suggests that man may not aspire to righteousness.

Why is it possible for a man to become righteous, if not totally at least to some degree? Because it has happened so often. Man WANTS to be righteous. He desires to advance, to make things better for himself and for others. Were this not true, we would be observers to an entirely different phenomenon than present society provides.

Examine the works of man. How many organizations of the man's formation are titled thusly: "Society for the Institution of Cruelty among Children," the Society for the Perpetuation of Arson," "Society for the Advancement of Murder and Rape as a Way of Life," "Society for the Torture of the Sick and Injured."

Clearly, man SEEKS that constant repetition of immoral which is good. Why? Because he seeks that which is in harmony with his deepest convictions and beliefs. Man is NOT basically evil, but certainly he is not wholly good. He SEEKS the good.

Next, Mr. Savage seeks to impugn our statement, "It is observable that many may stay alive without destroying other men." We contend that this phenomenon CAN be observed. Had men always gotten along without destroying other men, there would be no point either in our writings or those of Mr. Savage. But it is observable that men may stay alive without injuring others if they so choose.

Mr. Savage has used as a point in this discussion that he is willing to commit murder not once, but again and again. And his only argument seems to be that to stop murder, we too should be willing to murder in return.

Isn't this the old idea of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth? And isn't this the concept which the New Testament in the Bible rejects? We find the rejection of this concept satisfactory because to us, it is reasonable.

If every eye that is lost must result in the loss of a second eye, then it must follow that the loss of the second must result in the loss of a third and so on. Retaliation does not come paired, it is an endless chain. The way to break that chain is to stop retaliating and to defend one's self first so that retaliation is neither necessary nor possible.

He asks if we are seriously contending that a knowledge of immorality will deter a man from being immoral. We are seriously making this contention. We believe that the only real control over man's energies is that control exercised by himself. A knowledge of the difference between right conduct and wrong conduct is what has advanced human kind through the ages. A lack of such knowledge has condemned man (where the lack occurs) to actions.

Clearly, man SEEKS that constant repetition of immoral which is good. Why? Because he seeks that which is in harmony with his deepest convictions and beliefs. Man is NOT basically evil, but certainly he is not wholly good. He SEEKS the good.

They'll Do It Every Time

Pleasure of Learning

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD
On a bright, sunny Sunday afternoon a few weeks ago, I managed to conduct a two-hour seminar with my three grandchildren. Their responsive attitude towards the experiment pleased me but later comments provided more food for thought. Vicki, now 15, said: "You know that Sunday was interesting. I was fun. Lynn asked me why her school teachers ever stick to the subject, explained that she hopes to be able to go to the Freedom School and also insisted that learning can be fun when the teacher sticks to the subject as I did. Skipper, the youngest and a boy who would rather run than sit, even asked if we were going to do that again sometime because it was 'pretty neat and fun'."

My three grandchildren are not particularly studious. They rarely go beyond saying "It's okay, I guess," when they talk about school. They go to school as a matter of necessity but they proved to me they are eager to learn and can find enjoyment in the process. None of them has ever heard a teacher suggest that learning might be fun. Since I didn't say anything about having fun, either, they obviously enjoyed learning because they felt the time spent was not wasted and because they truly enjoyed the stimulation of their minds.

In my opinion, there are two words which are used too frequently in connection with education, schools and teachers—work and discipline. Used alone in connection with learning and education, those two words suggest absolutely nothing in the way of enjoyment or pleasure, and education suffers accordingly. Imagine a teacher saying, "You should enjoy studying this lesson tonight because if you concentrate properly, I am sure you will learn a great deal. You may discover some interesting questions you'll want to ask tomorrow." I suppose there may be a real teacher who does use such methods, possibly a teacher in a private school, but I dare to suggest that it isn't a condition which prevails, generally.

At a casual glance, the majority of the adults in this country appear to have embarked upon a path of knowledge of this character, what have they been doing?

Mr. Savage's position is, in fact, the position of primitive men. It denies completely the fact that unarmed men (ministers, pastors, doctors, others) have gone into the very midst of armed men and walked out unscathed. It overlooks the fact that Christianity advanced by the noble example set by hundreds of men who refused utterly to take up arms, but instead walked into uncivilized and brutal areas of the world, teaching and counseling kindness and peace. Why does Mr. Savage insist that this system is a failure? It has been, and continues to be, remarkably successful.

We believe that Mr. Savage, though he puts himself in the worst possible light, is really a fine man and well intentioned. We do not think that he plans to murder anyone nor to kill or torture or otherwise inflict his will upon others by force.

The true history of man is the history of the development of his ideas. The concept of morality, arising as it does from definite efforts to understand what is mine and what is thine, has done more to advance civilization than all the wars and murders and torturing that history records.

Why was Oswald brought back from Soviet Russia with American public funds? And why was he issued a new passport allowing him to go to Russia, shortly before he fired the shot from a Dallas window?

Why do Congressmen John M. Ashbrook and others find it necessary to press for a congressional investigation of the State Department, with especial attention to the assassination and its aftermath?

There are honorable and able public men on the Warren Commission. It is almost impossible that Senator Russell or Representative Ford, for instance,

MORAL SYSTEM

To the Editor:
Thank you for resolving the difficulties concerning the words "inalienable" and "unalienable." However, concerning the other questions posed, the further you progress the weaker your argument.

By far the weakest part of your argument, and indeed of your whole philosophy, is its foundation. If I understand you correctly, reason is the authority for your whole moral system. Therefore, your entire philosophy must be founded upon reason. No more shaky foundation could possibly exist. If reason is the father of morality, the same process of reasoning which deduced that murder was immoral, produced government. Reason tells you, however, that government is a positive evil. Reason tells me that all of these deductions cannot be correct. How then can I place an implicit trust in reason which has in so many cases been found wrong?

I agree with you when you state, "Man, by his nature, is a destroyer." I would go a step further and say that he is also evil by nature. The Bible clearly states this in Romans 3:10-20. "There is none righteous, no, not one," etc. I have observed you often refer to the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule to enforce your position. Reason, no doubt, tells you that these portions are reliable. Reason tells me that Romans 3:10-20 is also in the Bible, and that its truth may be observed in daily experience.

You further state, "It is observable that man may stay alive without destroying other men." History is a vast picture of man's struggle against other men for the privilege of staying alive. Furthermore the picture hasn't changed much from the first recorded murder (Cain vs. Abel) until the present. Therefore, in my opinion, this is a very debatable point. Are you saying that mankind as a whole made this observation? If so, where in all the bloody pages of the past do you find justification for such a statement?

You have argued that if I took your life, and failed to condemn myself for my action, I would become more depraved and since I got away with it once why not again and again, for my own profit? According to your philosophy there is no punishment except a "knowledge" of immorality. Are you seriously contending that a "knowledge" of immorality is going to deter man from immoral action? About the turn of the century, many of the learned men of that time were quoted saying, in essence, education has progressed to the place that there would be no more wars. The record speaks for itself. Knowledge is not enough. You are dealing with human nature. So far, you have advanced no real method for changing human nature. You contend that government is evil and ought to be abolished, yet you have no workable substitute for government. In a society based upon your philosophy with no imposition of force as a deterrent, and nothing to hinder the evil in man's nature, those who were truly immoral would soon kill or enslave the rest.

There is only one true system of morality. There is also only one way to effectively change man's nature. This way is found in the Bible. The Bible does not teach that a "knowledge" of immorality, or a self-imposed moral restraint is enough. The Bible does teach that a change in man's nature must take place, the author of that change being God. Furthermore the Biblical system of morality is founded upon authoritarian force.

In view of these facts, how can you advocate a system that has no possibility of success?

TRAFFIC CHANGES

To the Editor:
I certainly give my full support to Mr. Guberman on his good letter to the editor on this Colorado Springs new traffic situation. I am an out-of-town fellow and all these changes that have taken place in the last few years does put one in doubt as to what the rules are. None of us makes a wrong turn intentionally. The biggest percentage of drivers are good drivers.

Colorado Springs is the out-of-town people's place to do business and we spend a lot of money there in a year's time. I have read a few items on the city's new traffic rules. But there is a lot of room for more information.

More pictures are best, words are sometimes confusing and misleading.

The way the police department handles the situation with the five-dollar fine and taking away points, makes me wonder maybe it is the revenue that they reap rather than a sound traffic rule.

So again I say more power to Mr. Guberman. I am a supporter of his good ideas.

ALBERT LAFFERTY
Lake George

Editor's note: The Gazette Telegraph has already published 77 inches including 3 pictures in explaining and reporting on the local changes in our traffic laws. We do not believe we have neglected the matter.

However, we are of the view that the violation citations which have been given out are unnecessarily severe and wholly uncalled for.

Certainly the "point" system in which a man's driving license is devalued through so simple an infraction as an incorrect turn is little short of predatory.

A police department seeking to institute some basic changes of the rules would do a great deal to improve the morale of both local residents and visitors if they warn and instruct rather than punish.

What Panama Wants

WASHINGTON — Real aim of President Roberto Chiari — and of the small and very rich oligarchy that traditionally has ruled Panama (of which he is a leading member — in adamant insistence on revision of the canal treaty) is getting still more millions from the U.S.

That's the whole story behind the protracted deadlock over discussions of differences between the two countries.

Panama already is one of the biggest U.S. beneficiaries in Latin America.

Although in area and population among the smallest Western Hemisphere countries (28,576 square miles, 1,084,000 population), Panama is near the top of the list of dollar recipients.

Its "take" runs into hundreds of millions.

But Chiari and the oligarchy want still more, and their strategy to get it is to maneuver a guarantee of treaty revision before deliberations are undertaken. That's the inside reason for their unyielding clamor for such a commitment.

The little-known huge sums the U.S. has poured into this minuscule country are astonishing. Following are major items of this vast largesse:

$175 million — 1903 to 1963 in direct payments for the canal. As of 1967, these payments amount to $193 million annually.

$24 million — value of property turned over to Panama under the 1955 treaty.

$20 million — cost of a high-level bridge built over the canal at Balboa to speed Panamanian traffic.

$33 million — salaries of non-U.S. citizens employed in the Canal Zone in 1962, last year for which there are complete records.

$3.5 million — retirement and disability benefits paid to Panamanians in 1962.

$11.8 million — direct purchases by U.S. government agencies in Panama in 1962.

$15 million — purchases and services by U.S. contractors in Panama in 1962.

$20 million — estimated expenditures in Panama by U.S. citizens employed in the Canal Zone in 1962.

$63 million — U.S. foreign aid granted Panama from 1945 to 1962.

$18.047 million — World Bank loans for agriculture development, electric power production and highway improvement.

$328 million — U.S. private investments in Panama.

Citing this extraordinary record, Representative Thomas A. Abernethy, D-Miss., forcefully asserted that the U.S. stand in the Panamanian dispute is "fair and sound."

"We have no apologies to make to Panama and no restitution is called for," Abernethy told the House. "We have fulfilled our obligations honorably and generously. Our association with Panama over the years has been mutually beneficial and generally beneficial to the entire world."

er or money, then if he goes ahead and does it, his blood is on their hands.

What a man believes is what he is. Man should try to have convictions as to what is right and good. That is what we mean by making the Pikes Peak Region an even better place to live.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

The commission is digging into this aspect of the case. That was delayed until the Ruby trial was concluded. Numerous reports of alleged connections between the two men have reached the commission, and they are now being explored.

Definitely planned is direct testimony from the former nightclub operator. How this will be obtained is still undecided. Most likely, members of the commission will go to Dallas to interview Ruby in jail. There is no intention of bringing him to Washington.

PULL TOGETHER

To the Editor: I've met so many fine older people lately.

For example: Recently, I met a real old lady that said, "I want to live a long time if God wants me to, or on the other hand, I'm willing to go now if God wants me to."

For many years I was a watchman in a large automobile factory. I saved a lot of labor trouble because I listened to the problems of other people.

In every walk of life people have their troubles. If we all stand together we can make this a better world. We can make this world hard and difficult if we don't pull together. It takes only a little misunderstanding to make hardship for us all.

THE ANTLERS

To the Editor: When I read that the Antlers Hotel was to be torn down and some sort of business facility erected in its stead, my memory went back to the year that my family came to Colorado Springs — namely, 1902.

The Antlers Hotel was a year old and the center of all social and business activity. Its great lobby, with a fire burning in the fireplace, its rich red carpets and draperies, made it a place to behold. From a small business or social luncheon to a debutante's coming out party, all were staged in the wonderful Antlers. The service, with a French chef and Mr. Berger, the maître d' hotel, with his knowledge of culinary art, made dining a joy. Even the skyline, with the turrets, mirrored against Pikes Peak at the background, exemplified beauty.

As a small child, a great delight was to go with the daughter of the manager into the pantries in the basement and raid the great ice cream vats. The impression of such beautiful food as the fancy cakes and the petit fours being made created in a little girl great wonderment. As I grew older and college reunions and women's organizational meetings took place I found myself enjoying Antlers' hospitality. When the last stone of the building is gone, something also will have disappeared which made Colorado Springs a center of culture and a city of beauty. One wonders what is progress?

WITHOUT A MASTER

To the Editor: "I have no fear, but that the result of our experiment will be that men may be trusted to govern themselves without a master. Could the contrary of this be proved, I should conclude, either that there is no God, or that he is a malevolent being," declared Jefferson.

This basic political principle gives interesting results when applied to some of our modern governments. The Communists, who take the negative position on self government, are the world's foremost atheists; yet at one time many Communists revered Stalin as God. Certainly Stalin was as malevolent as they come, and so we find the principle working perfectly in this instance.

Bureaucracy is essentially a denial that men can govern themselves without a master. We who have kept up with the news know that the fruits of bureaucracy are everywhere evil. It follows, therefore, that the God of bureaucracy is a malevolent being. Actually, all non-free, or authoritarian, governments consist of some form of bureaucracy whether communist, feudal, or decadent democracy. All these forms claim that they seek only the welfare and best interests of their subjects; but they all deny outright, or tacitly by their deeds, that men can govern themselves without a master.

OPEN DISCUSSION

To the Editor: The sincere socialist who will honestly and rigorously define theft will, inevitably, find himself either in the process of renouncing socialism in its entirety, or in the position of defending theft. The latter alternative, carried to its logical extension of all stealing from all, is one that no man likes to contemplate or will, left to his own devices, consistently follow. The synonym for socialism is "legal plunder" — and that spells out as forced and fraudulent exchange. The antonym of socialism is "freedom of choice" and that spells out as uninhibited exchange in the market place of both goods and ideas. The market place, incidentally, is also the only true democracy the world has ever known.

The true teacher — the true humanitarian — will welcome an open discussion of this subject. Refusal or evasion renders one immediately suspect.

MILITARY CITIZENS

To the Editor: Isn't there more than a whiff of hypocrisy in the policies of federal administrations which speak up so strongly for "civil rights" while at the same time practicing rank discrimination in their suppression of military rights?

There are the Status of Forces treaties which deny to servicemen abroad the constitutional rights and protections intended for all Americans, making our servicemen subject to the laws of the land where they are ordered to serve.

There are the gag-muzzle-and-leash regulations which deny to Americans in uniform the right to be citizens. We need never fear a free-speaking military establishment, but one made secret by being denied the right to speak as private citizens is another thing, for then who knows what is going on? Equal rights for all citizens must mean in or out of uniform. Security measures must also apply equally to men and women in and out of uniform.

Give the Armed Forces personnel back their full citizenship, make them first-class citizens again. Stop the discrimination between Civil Rights and Military Rights, make the Constitution of the United States every American's Constitution.

SUBSCRIBER

To the Editor: Congratulations to you and Dr. Boardman for your amazing intellectual contribution to society. Thanks to you two logically oriented people my wife and I now govern ourselves by the use of logic and reason. The understanding of freedom is so simple and so clear we can't understand why we did not see this truth before.

I had the privilege earlier this month of personally thanking Dr. Boardman for this knowledge. We talked for two days. Some day I hope to have the pleasure of personally thanking you.

My wife and I are looking forward to receiving the Gazette-Telegraph so we can read you and Dr. Boardman daily. I have, therefore, enclosed a check for a one year's subscription.

Teen Winners Announced in Photo Contest

By BART KINCH

United Press International
Camera 35 has announced the winners of the magazine's first nationwide teen-age photo contest.

The youngsters competed for 35mm camera equipment in both black and white (b-w) and color divisions.

John R. Gossage, 17, of Staten Island, N.Y., won top prize of a Minolta SR-1 camera in the black and white division, for a delightful shot of two children lying on a rock in Central Park. Each child has a balloon on a fairly long string which is tied to his wrist.

Gossage, according to the magazine, is studying for a career in photography.

The top color prize, a Minolta SR-7, was won by William Tondreau, 18, Mission Hills, Calif., for "his striking composition of flowers in green water," the magazine said. Tondreau is a camera hobbyist specializing in nature photography and attends San Fernando Valley State College where he is a freshman.

Second prize in Black and white went to Robert Clark, 18, Los Altos, Calif., third, Philip Graham, 19, Auburn, N.Y., and fourth, Robert Salpeter, 16, New York City.

In the color division, second prize was awarded to John A. Lawlor, 18, Bridgeport, Conn., third, Carolyn Kim, 18, Cleveland, Ohio, and fourth, Ricky Cohn, 17, the Bronx, New York City.

Teen-agers from 22 states and the District of Columbia won such prizes as an Ansco Autotest camera, a Zeiss Ikon Contina, a Richo Auto 35, a Durst RS-35 enlarger and an Ultrablitz Rocket Speedlight.

A portfolio of the photographs appears in the April-May issue of Camera 35.

Pope Urges Tourists To Be Pilgrims, Too

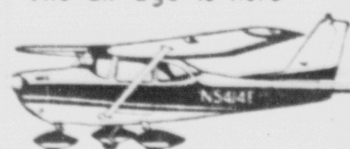

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, addressing himself to tourists who flock by the thousands to Rome for Easter, Wednesday urged them to become devout pilgrims too.

Speaking in his weekly general audience, Pope Paul remarked that Easter was approaching.

"We would like to urge you all to take profit of your presence in Rome during this highest Christian holiday and penetrate even better into the spirit of this great liturgical celebration and participate even more deeply to the sentiments, the rites and the mystery of our redemption."

The bidding:

4♣ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠
An excess of trumps lulled South, the declarer in today's hand, into a false sense of security. The four heart contras were eminently sound, and both North and South had something in reserve for their calls.
West opened the eight of spades and East's queen was his command for, after the bad taken by declarers ace. A trump break was revealed, he trump was led to the queen and still had 10 top tricks available. The uneven split in hearts hastened to reenter his hand with a diamond in order to take the proven heart finesse against West's ten. The king of hearts was cashed but, when declarer tried to cross back with another diamond so that he might complete the drawing of trump, West administered a jolt by ruffing with the seven of hearts.

A question now arose concerning how best to put East in for another diamond ruff. West is no way to prevent the declarer from taking eight tricks in the red suits plus the two black aces.
The luxury of bringing in the entire trump suit should have been foregone in the interests of safety. South must content himself with cashing his four high hearts and then begin to run the diamond suit. West may ruff in with the ten of trumps whenever he wishes, but there is no way to prevent the declarer from taking eight tricks in the red suits plus the two black aces.

Junior's Teeth Can Be Replanted

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — And don't forget to take the can be replaced if they are treated quickly enough, and are likely to last six months to six years.
There have been a number of cases, Dr. Mink says, where parents just push a loose tooth back into place and it grows back onto the bond that holds it in the jaw.
"The trouble when a tooth is knocked out usually is that parents forget to bring the tooth with them when they come to the dentist," he says.
"Even if it's dirty, we can clean it up and have a good chance of replanting it."
Dr. Mink says he knows of one youngster who has three teeth that have been replanted, and one member of our faculty had a tooth replanted when he was in dental school and it's still doing fine.
The replanted tooth, of course, is dead, but it looks like other teeth, he adds.
The replanting method can't be used on baby teeth, however, since it might injure the permanent tooth underneath.

Women Cure Fish

CROW HEAD, Nfld. (AP) — The women of this tiny settlement on Twillingate Island in Notre Dame Bay may be leading the way to a revival of Newfoundland's light-salted codfish industry.

The fishermen of Crow Head have managed to get their womenfolk back to a job that once was vital to the island's economy — drying the fish.

To do this the men came up with a simple way of curing fish. Instead of the back-breaking work of spreading and turning the light-salted fish on flat forms made of poles and covered with spruce boughs known as flakes, the fish is hung on racks and turned in the sun.

Chopped cashew nuts make an interesting addition to cooked rice, cooked noodles, buttered snap beans or green peas.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

For those who get a terrible racket when a water faucet is turned on... the best thing to do is to replace the washer because it is probably either loose or worn.

This can be checked first by turning the faucet on full blast to see if the noise stops. If it does, that is probably the cause. When replacing the washer be sure it is held tightly in place by the set screw.

Another cause of "hammering" or "chattering" water faucets is worn threads on the valve stem. This is easily identified by bearing down hard on the handle as you turn. If this stops the noise, or greatly reduces it, then a loose valve stem is indicated and the cure is installing a new stem. Plumbing supply stores advertise these stems to fit any faucet. —Harry

Dear Heloise:

When I iron tablecloths I find that if I iron the middle of the cloth first on my ironing board, then fold it in half lengthwise and iron both sides that it not only lays straighter — without the "warbles," but keeps it from puckering when put on the table.

Also, the center of the cloth is ironed while it's completely damp... and really the center is what we notice mostly... so when we get to the edges of the cloth if it happens to be slightly dry a few small wrinkles will not be so noticeable as the edges will hang over the side of the table.

I never fold the cloth in half and crease that center fold with my iron. This not only wears out the cloth but makes it stick-up in the middle like Mt. Fuji. This is most unsightly.

I was told that a cloth should be ironed out straight, folded once lengthwise down the middle and slightly—not heavily—ironed and that the folds, other than the center crease, should never be ironed. Can you brief me on this? —Trying-to-learn

I have looked in five protocol books and so far as I can find out all five said this is the correct way to iron a cloth. One did say it was not necessary to crease the fold down the middle even with an iron... better to take your hand or finger and crease this fold.

Immediately after the cloth is pressed it should be folded lengthwise first down the center. Then, the cloth should be folded over lengthwise "again." These may either be put on coat hangers as is, or folded crosswise and laid in your linen chest. —Heloise

Rubber bands are very handy for removing stuck bottle caps such as the ones on catsup bottles.

Just wrap the band around-and-around the top of the bottle, twist hard and usually the stubbornest cap gives way. People who have seen me do this are just amazed as they never even thought of it before, and it's so simple. —S.

For those of you who have airtight bread boxes (the type you "burp"), and once in a while find the airtight top has not been kept properly closed and a loaf of bread dries out.

I have found that you can dampen a paper napkin, lay on top of the loaf of bread, replace the cover to the bread container, leave it overnight and the bread will be soft again.

Leave this dampened paper napkin inside the bread container until all the bread is used up. We find this terrific in our home. —Heloise

Crisp Lettuce Suggests Many Spring Salads

Lettuce bundle salads are a good choice for picnics. The whole meal is rolled up in a crisp leaf of western iceberg lettuce, with a green pepper ring holding it in place. Easy to eat out of hand — no forks needed.

ALSATIAN POTATO LETTUCE SALAD

(Makes 6 servings)

1 large head western iceberg lettuce
9 anchovy filets, chopped
1 cup bottled French dressing
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 1/2 cups cooked, julienned chicken
1 1/2 cups diced, cooked ham
3 cups cooked, chilled, diced potatoes
1 can (8 1/2 ounces) diced beets, drained
2 tablespoons chopped sweet gherkins
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Core lettuce; rinse in cold water; drain well. Place in plastic bag or transparent film, refrigerate. Combine anchovies, French dressing and mustard. Pour 1-3 cup of anchovy dressing over chicken, ham and potatoes; toss gently. Chill. Com-erate. Mix sour cream with 2 additional tablespoons of cream; dill weed; onion salt, and mustard. In bowl, toss apple lightly with lemon juice; add potatoes, ham and dressing; toss lightly and chill. At serving time, prepare 6 lettuce cups.

Shred remainder and toss with potato salad. Spoon salad into lettuce cups; roll up, slipping anchovy dressing Toss together green pepper rings around each lettuce cup. Secure remaining ingredients on 6 toothpicks and insert in lettuce bundles for garnish.

Treat your family to quick corned beef and lettuce instead of cabbage. They'll like the delicate flavor of cooked western iceberg lettuce wedges.

Kneading yeast dough makes the dough smooth and elastic so it can hold the gas that the yeast provides.

TEENS MODEL FOR OWC — Spring and summer fashions from Betty's Fashions were modeled by teenagers from various school for members of the Ent Officers' Wives Club. Several young matrons also participated in the style show. Pictured here are Susan Givens, left, and Carol Bennett who modeled swim suits. Susan, Wasson High School Cheer Leader and a member of the student council, is shown in a pixie cut plaid. Carol, Wasson Homecoming Queen this year, is wearing a red, white and blue patch work suit. At right, Karen Honn who will be presented at the Military Debutante Ball in early summer, is modeling a lovely ensemble in shell pink, designed for the poised and posture-perfect teenager. All three of the young ladies are daughters of Air Force Officers.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Delayed Reaction!

DEAR ABBY: I just read the a-way and married me. —MRS. Letter signed "CANT FORGET HERB WINTER ON FARLEY HIM." It was from a woman who was still trying to find a man she met in La Crosse, Wisconsin, during World War II.

She said all she knew about him was that he was from Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and he had "HERB" tattooed on him. Can you please tell me where the tattoo was located? I think my Herb has some explaining to do. —CANT FORGET HIM EITHER

DEAR CANT: Sorry, but I don't have this information. But if I were you, I'd lay off. Your Herb has already been needed enough.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "CANT FORGET HIM" that she will have to. HE came this-

DEAR ABBY: I married a fine young man who lost his parents at an early age. He was reared by his only living relative, an older sister. I was so looking forward to meeting her because my husband told me how wonderful she was. On our first meeting alone she told me that the only reason her brother married me was to stay out of the army! She was so cruel and cutting I couldn't wait to get away from her to let loose the flood of tears within me. I love my husband and I think he loves me. I don't want to stir up trouble between my husband and his sister, but I would like to know where she got an idea like that.

—MARRIED TWO WEEKS

DEAR MARRIED: Dry your tears and take a good, hard look at your husband's sister. You will see a jealous, possessive woman who would have disliked "any" woman her brother married. Ignore her barb, if you can. If you can't, ask your husband where his sister got such a notion.

U.S. Had Law School Before Independence

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "Earliest American Law Court, 6 cabinet members, 28 senators and 14 governors of the United States were educated in the first law school in the country. It was founded in 1775, and there was no other law school in all the colonies."

Young men who aspired to be lawyers got their training by reading law books in the offices of recognized members of the bar.

But then in that year before American independence, Tapping Reeve opened his home in Litchfield as a training ground for lawyers.

Now, outside the Reeve home and an adjoining building, stands this sign:

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Scrapbook this case about Tess and her "Death Wish." For Dr. Menninger has stated that the largest item on the usual state budget is for institutions for mental cases! This clinical column serves as "vaccination" against insanity as well as divorce and delinquency, so you taxpayers all benefit in your pocketbook!

By - George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE S-423: Tess V., aged 25, is the young mother who felt she was going insane.

And she complained of nightmares in which she was attending funerals where a small casket indicated a child was being buried.

After she would awaken, she'd rush into her baby's bedroom to make sure it was alive.

Her case is a classical example of the "Death Wish."

Many a young mother who has monopolized the family stage all her life, is suddenly afflicted with secret jealousy of her new baby.

If any person has been accustomed to big doses of the family spotlight all her life and then is suddenly cast aside, such a person may react almost as violently as a dope addict who has been cut off from his morphine or heroin.

When a 4-year-old only child monster!" she thinks. "No suddenly is dethroned by the normal mother would EVER advent of a baby brother or sister, he may bluntly say, "I hate the baby I wish some-body would take it away."

In adulthood, we consciously gests the synonym "abnormal" express such brutal ideas but and "abnormal" brings up the they still lurk in our subconscious mind.

Vaguely, therefore, an ego-deflated mother may sigh and think:

"Oh it was so much pleasanter for me before the baby came I wish the baby weren't here."

Well, this is a fleeting thought that can flash across the mind of any normal person who is tired and doubly hungry for attention.

Thus, it even strikes older people who are looking after invalidated parents who become senile or bedfast.

But when a person suddenly wakes up to vivid awareness that he has thus fleetingly wished for the death of a loved one, he may recoil.

A young mother like Tess may reel back in horror "Why I must be a heinous monster!" she thinks.

"So I'm definitely not normal!"

But "not normal" soon suggests the synonym "abnormal" brings up the next synonym, namely "insane" or "deranged" or "losing my mind."

Such a victim of the classical "Death Wish" then alternates between fits of guilt, coupled with remorseful terror lest God may actually take the baby away as divine punishment.

That is why Tess had her nightmares involving a child's casket or coffin.

Then she'd wake up in terror and race to the baby's bedroom to make sure it was still breathing.

Taxpayers, you are stuck with the expensive bills for the mental sanitarium care of thousands of such cases, when they could usually be prevented by widespread dissemination of the correct facts.

Be grateful to your editor for thus offering a clinical column on preventive psychology and psychiatry, for it actually reduces your taxes when we can stop divorce, institutional care of mental patients, crimes, etc.

The best vaccination against such heavy drains on you taxpayers is prophylaxis, as by such columns as this one.

So send for the "Death Wish" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 20 cents.

Every young bride should have it as insurance for a normal mental outlook after childbirth!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Korean Chief Tries to Quiet Angry Students

By C. S. CHIN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chung Hee Park recalled his personal representative from Japan today in an attempt to quiet students demonstrating against the Tokyo talks to normalize relations between Japan and South Korea.

In Tokyo, Japanese government spokesmen said the departure of Kim Chong-pil, Park's right-hand man and top troubleshooter, would not affect the normalization talks.

Park recalled Kim as about 3,000 students demonstrated for the fourth straight day against the negotiations to patch up longtime enmity between the two nations.

The turnout, about 7,000 youths in Seoul and the rest scattered among 12 provincial towns, was less than half the size of the outpouring Thursday, when more than 60,000 students marched.

In government circles, where the demonstrations are a painful reminder of an aroused younger generation that toppled President Syngman Rhee four years ago, there was hope that the public displays might be tapering off.

Much of Seoul resembled an armed camp.

About 300 teen-agers, wearing the traditional black uniforms of high school students, tried to tear down a barricade strung across the broad avenue in front of the capitol. This touched off a 10-minute clash with police in which one youth was bloodied by a flying club. The police managed to push the demonstrators back about 50 yards. The students threw a few rocks from that point, then marched off.

About 700 university students lined up in front of Seoul's Bando Hotel, popular with Japanese, and stood there more than an hour chanting slogans, singing and shouting "Go home, Japanese!"

Kim, instructed to catch the first plane back Saturday, actually is not one of the official negotiators sent to seek normal diplomatic and trade relations with Japan. But his closeness to Park has made him a key figure in the negotiations.

The students and Park's political opponents want the talks suspended. They fear that concessions will be made giving Japan a grip on the Korean economy.

STATUS-SNOOZING

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you are looking for a status symbol with 500 years of tradition behind it, the king-size bed is for you. Large beds became a symbol of social status in the 15th century, reports the Sleep Institute of the Spring Air Mattress Co.

"In those days, a prosperous man would spend an average of $5,000 on a bed to show that he had arrived," said Ronald J. Shepherd, the firm's executive vice president.

Faith for Our Time

And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross that he might bear it after Jesus. And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him. But Jesus turning unto them said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

—Luke 23:26-28

There is an immeasurable distance between submission to the cross and acceptance of it.

Miss Colorado Springs Preliminaries in June

Preliminaries to the Miss Colorado Springs pageant, sponsored by the Optimist Club, will be held Monday evening June 8 in the Palmer High School auditorium, it was announced by Amos Bontrager, chairman of the production and staging committee.

The preliminary elimination will be the first step, repeated in many other cities across the U.S., leading to the eventual selection of Miss America in Atlantic City in September. Each of the Miss Americas chosen since the contest originated in 1921, began her rise to the national beauty title in just such a home-town contest as that which we stage here in June, Bontrager said.

The local preliminaries will narrow the field of entries down to 12 finalists in a street clothes elimination, with contestants being judged on poise, posture, charm, personality, and beauty of face and figure, he explained.

The 12 finalists will participate in evening gown swim suit and talent categories for the Miss Colorado Springs title on June 12, with the winner of that step of the competition going on to the Miss Colorado pageant held in Denver in July, he said.

Rules governing participation in the Miss Colorado Springs pageant were explained as follows:

Entrant agrees to abide by all the rules of the local and national contests now in effect or as announced hereafter.

Entrant agrees that the time, manner and method of entering the contest shall be solely within the discretion of the Optimist Club and that the decision of the judges will be final.

Entrant agrees that if she is selected as the winner of this contest, she will not sign a management contract with any individual or corporation, and that she will not give any written or verbal endorsement of any mercantile commodity or commercial organization nor will she permit any photographs to be used in connection with any advertised commodity or service not associated with this contest, without the permission of the Miss America pageant.

Entrant must be a resident of the Pikes Peak area for the past six months. This rule is only waived for contestants whose residence is out of the city or state, but who is a college or university student in city where contest is held and at time the contest is held. She must not have competed in more than one official preliminary contest this year.

Entrant must be single and never have been married, divorced, or had marriage annulled.

Entrant must be a high school graduate by September of this year.

Entrant's age on September 1, shall not be less than 18, or more than 28 years.

Entrant must be of good character and possess poise, personality, intelligence, charm and beauty of face and figure.

Entrant must possess and display in a three-minute routine talent. This talent may be singing, dancing, playing a musical instrument, dramatic reading, art display, dress designing, etc., or she may give a three-minute talk on the career she wishes to pursue.

Entrant may be either amateur or professional.

Bontrager urged all interested persons in the Pikes Peak area to nominate likely candidates by sending their selection to Harold Buss, Pageant Entries committee chairman, 2103 Collier Ave., or call 634-4119, for further information.

Human Rights Group Gets Local Housing Data

Chairman Charles Guy of the Human Rights Action Committee told a meeting of the group Wednesday evening that he is now receiving information on local housing covered by the Presidential order banning racial discrimination in certain real estate transactions.

An executive order issued by the late President Kennedy in 1962 forbade discrimination in all housing units and developments financed through programs of federal agencies. This includes homes with FHA and Veterans Administration loans, said Guy.

Through the cooperation of the Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission officials in Denver we are now receiving information on such housing in Colorado Springs. We are prepared to use it to ease the problems of members of local minority groups who can't find decent housing because of discrimination.

Guy said that anyone in the Pikes Peak region finding difficulty buying a home because of racial discrimination should call Mrs. Edward Diller of the committee at 633-6991. Similar service is available through the Colorado Springs office of the Anti-Discrimination Commission.

The Human Rights Action Committee was formed specifically to combat housing discrimination in Colorado Springs. We now have information at our disposal which will allow victims of discrimination to have a decent selection of housing units to choose from," said Guy.

Later in the meeting the committee attacked the recent advertisements appearing in Colorado newspapers under the sponsorship of the "Coordinating Committee for Fundamental American Freedoms, Inc."

Guy told the meeting that the "Committee," whose sole purpose seems to be to defeat the Civil Rights Bill now before the Senate, is nothing but a "front group for the Mississippi Sovereignty Commission."

The advertisements attacking the Civil Rights Bill are financed almost completely with money collected from Mississippi tax-payers, both White and Negro.

The government of Mississippi is trying to influence the votes of Congressmen from other states by feeding half-truths and outright lies to their constituents.

Guy urged the committee members to do all they could to overcome the misrepresentations propagated by the propaganda agents of the state of Mississippi.

$1.26 Per Capita Fire Loss in Springs for '63

Fires in Colorado Springs last year cost each resident $1.26— at least they would have if fire losses were figured on a per capita basis.

The per capita cost is based on the total insured fire loss here last year — $107,096. Fire Chief Fred H. Lausch said this was slightly more than the total insured loss for 1962.

Lausch said losses in 1962 amounted to $100,544; $72,728 in 1961; $66,894 in 1960 and $129,372 in 1959.

Of the 124 building alarms where losses occurred, the loss to buildings was $74,071 and $22,397 to contents. The loss was $10,645 where losses occurred to 38 motor vehicles.

The fire chief said there were 21 fires exceeding $1,000 in loss, which accounted for 74.13 per cent of the year's total insured loss.

The loss on just three fires amounted to $37,875, with $22,000 of that to a bakery at 408 S. Nevada Ave. There was a $10,500 dwelling fire at 831 N. Corona St. and a $5,375 one to a house trailer at 1132 E. Costilla St.

During the past year the fire department responded to 1,123 alarms, of which 89 were false and 22 were outside the city limits.

Lausch said 1,018 of the 1,123 alarms were received by telephones and 105 from fire alarm boxes.

There was an increase of 183 alarms last year over the 1962 total. There were 773 alarms in 1961 and 735 in 1960.

Lausch said it was interesting to note that more alarms were received on Friday than any other day of the week, although Wednesdays were a close second. The least number of calls were received on Mondays.

He also reported that more alarms were received during April of last year than during any other month, but running right behind April were July, May and December. October was the low month for calls, followed closely by September and February. The fire insured loss was largest during December.

The total fire insured loss in Colorado Springs in the last 25 years from 1939 through 1963 has been $2,984,483. There was a loss of $603,392 in 1958, the highest in the quarter century, and only $8,008 in 1941, the low mark. The department received 14,601 alarms during that period, but only 7,984 of those were working alarms to extinguish fires.

Mrs. Fannie Lou Finch Died at Hospital

Mrs. Fannie Lou Finch, 3121 Virginia Ave., died Wednesday at a local hospital. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1948 and was a member of the Methodist Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Vera Mae Burkes, of Wichita, Kan.; a son, Robert N. Finch, Englewood, Colo.; and six grandchildren, Robert, Peggy, Kathy and Richard Burks, of Wichita, and Ronny and Debbie Finch of Englewood.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. today at the Swan Drawing Room. Dr. LeRoy F. Arend officiated. Burial will be in Esbon, Kan.

Terrors Host Bulldogs In Key Early Contest

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

In a game which could easily be the first of the season, the Terrors will host the Bulldogs in a key early contest. The game is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Terrors' home field. The Bulldogs are a strong team, having won the championship of the SCL last year. The Terrors are looking to start their season with a win. The game is expected to be a close one.

Breeding, who knocked in three runs to break up a 1-0 tie in the first inning. However, they were limited to only four hits by the Bulldogs. The game was a close one, with the Terrors leading 1-0 in the first inning. The Bulldogs then scored in the second inning to tie the game. The game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Probably the most impressive part of the Palmer win, though, was the pitching of a couple of newcomers to the staff. This year, Junior lefty Tom Medley pitched out started and recorded five strikeouts in three and one-third innings and sophomore righty Phil Johnson mopped up the last three frames and didn't allow a hit.

Hughes indicated, however, that he will start Medley again against the visiting Bulldogs. This Saturday, with Johnson in ready reserve. In the afternoon tilt with Lamar, the Terrors probably will go with senior Ted Jones, who had trouble finding the corners in the season's opener and perhaps Junior Ron Cheek in the bullpen. Cheek is just recovered from a wrist injury, but is expected to be ready by this weekend.

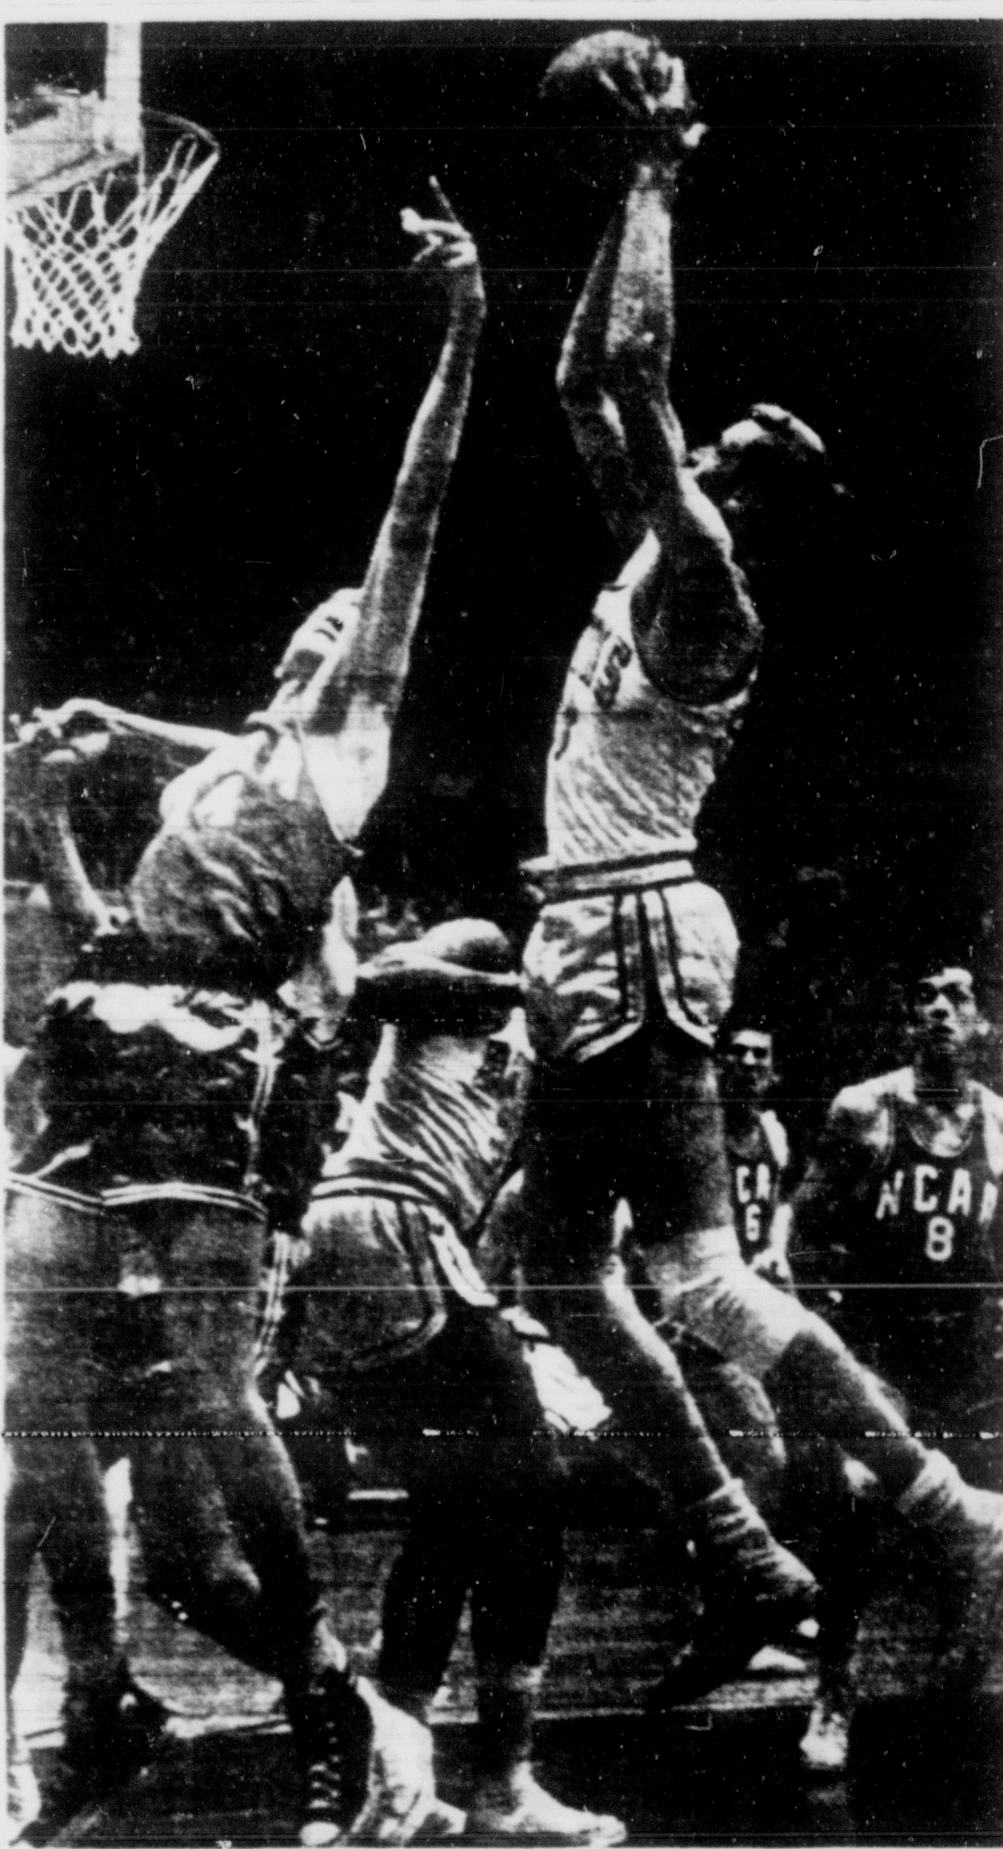

Breeding also indicated that the Terrors have a slight inclination which is causing pain in the right arm. The Terrors are in good shape to start the league warfare and Hughes said he will most likely stick with about the same lineup that started against Englewood. The one possible exception may come in left field where Tommy Thompson will alternate with Rich Tafava.

Other starters should see Jerry Golden at first, Reinking on second, Ollie West at short and Gary Johnson at third. In the outfield with either Tofava or Thompson will be slick fielding Don Shoffner in center and Richard Grapp in right.

Next week Palmer has road games at Trinidad on Tuesday and at Denver's Thomas Jefferson next Saturday. However, the game with Air Academy High which was snowed-out last Wednesday probably will be rescheduled for early next week, depending on weather conditions.

"I'd rather not have to play Centennial this early in the season," Hughes said this week. "But on the other hand, we should be just about as ready as they are so it shouldn't make much difference. Our pitchers haven't had much time out of doors because of the weather, and this could hurt us."

Both Palmer and Centennial will be coming into their crucial meeting undefeated, although the Bulldogs are one up on the Terrors in games played. Last Saturday the Tribe opened their slate with an impressive 4-1 victory over Englewood of the Northern League, while this past week Centennial clobbered Pueblo County, 11-2, and slipped past Pueblo Catholic, 3-2. The Terrors were led to victory by the pinch-hit double off the bat of reserve catcher Don

'Birds' Launch Defense With Eagles in Pueblo

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO — Giff Funk's Wasson Thunderbirds launch the defense of their South Central League baseball title here Saturday morning against Pueblo SCL baseball teams in the past East with a team short on experience, still questionable in ability, but long on winning tradition.

The T-Birds, who bullied conference opposition with brilliant pitching and powerful hitting the past two seasons, may have to turn cute if they envision a third straight title. The top two hurlers of the championship clubs and the majority of the long-range artillery departed with the graduating class last spring.

To complicate matters, the lack of agreeable weather to date this spring has slowed the repair process undertaken by Funk and assistants Dick West, bay and Kent Hill. This Wasson will go into Saturday's league opener at Pueblo unsettled — and to an extent, unproven.

If the uncertain weather permits the contest is set for Pueblo's Runyon Field at 10 a.m. Wasson opened its 1964 season last Saturday with a pair of narrow victories over upstate opponents, but the two games left few clues as to the potential of this club. The T-Birds pitched was not overly impressive — but neither was it bad. Scales at second, and junior Jim Smith at shortstop. Baird, the team's lineup was obvious — broke up the T-Birds' game by short of the power that prodded the past two with Englewood last Saturday.

The defense was still effective in the bottom of the seventh inning. The defense was not of the smooth texture of the Scales had four for seven in championship clubs — but it accounted for five double plays a handyman regular as a sophomore last year, filling in at tually be one of the strong points.

In addition Wasson still ran Wickham will likely draw the bases with much the same skill of seasons past and also the other two posts will showed excellent training in wait for last minute decisions. Other technical departments. Top candidates include Charlie Steel, Terry Stillwaugh, John that runs may be a little harder Junker, Rich Porreco, Ron to come by and leads somewhat Nighswonger, and Maynard.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

Seven-Game Wonders

There is unanimity among those involved that any short-time playoff proves little or nothing as far as a championship is concerned. That goes for baseball's World Series to a weekend tournament in marbles.

The theory is that over seven games (or so), which is the usual amount in a playoff series, that time is too limited and because of the pressure present the little things that often go wrong influence the outcome too greatly.

Take any series of this type, and generally the team that takes the first game will wind up with all the chips. Going ahead gives a team the advantage of changing almost strictly to offensive strategy while the other team is more concerned with not losing than they are with winning.

So what's the use, you might ask.

It's all too simple, and it can be spelled out with the sign of the almighty buck. The revenue raked in during this type of tournament between best and near-best makes it all worth while — and this includes em all from the Little Leagues thru the Pros.

Obviously, that's the reason they are still trying to decide the "champion" of the Western Hockey League, going on this week in Denver and Portland. The teams finished their regular season of 70 games with the Denver Invaders way out in front. But still they must turn around and put up all the cookies on the outcome of a best-of-seven series that is to count toward the title just as much as the entire season.

Actually, the WHL is a little more realistic about this than some leagues in that both the semi-finals and finals have the seven-game limit. The winners of the first series meet later in another home-and-home set to determine the Lester Patrick Cup winner.

Too often this sort of thing is settled on a one or two game basis in which anything can and often does happen. This may contribute to the excitement of such a playoff, but it is hardly justice.

But, taking the WHL for instance, during the regular season the Invaders beat their playoff partners, the Los Angeles Blades, in 10 of their 14 meetings. You would think that fourth place club in the final that would be just about enough proof of which is the better team this year. But no, they go into the playoffs against one another and the Blades pop the surprise and win the opener in Denver, Wednesday night.

They go at it again on Saturday, but even should the Invaders regain their hold over the Blades in that one, they would be no better than a even choice in a third game next week in Los Angeles. That, though, is what packs 'em in.

After equalling the league record for most victories in one year (44), it would be quite a turnaround if the Invaders couldn't cop the Cup that is emblematic of the championship. Nonetheless, they have undoubtedly won a lot of friends around the region — and that's about all they set out to do in the first season of operation.

The next week or so won't hurt the coffers, and you can bet that Coach Rudy Pilous' Raiders will be back again next year even stronger. . . at least at the box office. At least part credit should go to former Colorado College goalie, Bob Scarlett, who was in on the ground floor during organization of the new team and who still is doing a good job for them in dishing out publicity.

Along this same line, it's amazing what a small turn of events can do to change history. That was shown this season in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association which finished up last weekend with the NCAA tournament, also in Denver. Michigan University, in a slight surprise after being belted the week before in the WCHA playoffs by Denver, won the national diadem with a somewhat lopsided 6-3 win over the same Pioneers.

But how close Michigan came to not even making the trip to Denver for the national tournament, this one is one of those single shot deals in the finals. The week before the four top teams in the WCHA battled it out in a two-game, total goals series to see which two would represent the league in the NCAA.

Michigan Tech finished fourth in the regular season standings and thus drew the U of Michigan as opponent. But, playing at Ann Arbor on Michigan's home ice, Tech was only a whisker away from dropping the regular season's champs out of the running.

Tech lost the first of the two games by a 4-3 margin, but in the second game they whipped the Wolverines by 5-4 in regulation time to send the playoffs into sudden death overtime. The first team to score would go to the NCAA tournament, while the loser would go to the second game of this series. In the overtime period, Tech had no fewer than five golden shots on the Michigan net. And just seconds before the regulation time ran out, Tech's captain George Hill went over on a Michigan blue line on a lone breakaway but just missed his target.

By that slim margin, it was Michigan that won the national title when it very easily could have been Tech, instead. And to think that just a few days before, Tech managed to slip past Colorado College by 2-0 and 9-8 in overtime scores.

Which all goes to prove that CC's team wasn't so far from championship caliber after all.

As for the NCAA title game, CC's Bob Johnson had his own thoughts on why Denver lost out despite their home ice and after trimming the Wolverines the previous week.

"Denver had just too many good players for their own good," Johnson said this week before departing for the annual WCHA meeting of coaches and athletic directors this weekend in Chicago. "I think they had so many that the best couldn't get enough ice time to get warmed up to the game to do their best."

Johnson explained that Coach Murray Armstrong was so loaded with talent that he not only had three to four forward lines (one more than most teams), and a set of four defensemen (Continued on Page 15)

Pikes Peak League Teams Launch Baseball Schedules

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The Pikes Peak League gets into full swing, weather permitting, this weekend with the majority of the six squads launching their baseball campaigns.

Manitou Springs initiated its slate last week when the Mustangs downed Fountain Valley Boys' school, 8-2, a week ago today to officially kick-off the 1964 baseball season here.

This morning the Manitou team was to have played the Palmer "B" team on its home diamond beginning at 10 a.m. for the only scheduled contest in the PPL. The Mustangs took it on the chin twice this week against the Wasson "B" team, 13-5 and 13-8.

Saturday's agenda calls for four of the loop teams in action. Cheyenne Mountain, the perennial power in the Class-AA league for the last six years, takes on last year's state finalist, Lamar, in a twin bill at the Indians field.

The Cheyenne-Lamar first game is scheduled for 10 a.m., Saturday at the Cheyenne junior high diamond. The second game is slated to begin immediately following the conclusion of the opener. In addition to the twin bill with Cheyenne, the Lamar group is scheduled to make the cross-town jaunt to tangle with Palmer in their third outing that day. That contest is set for 2:30 p.m., providing the Cheyenne-Lamar doubleheader goes as scheduled.

Other games Saturday: Widefield and Harrison will compete in the annual Canon City Tournament, and runner-up in last year's PPL chase, Air Academy High, will make the 70-mile trip north to meet Brighton in an afternoon session at 1 p.m.

The two local squads, Harrison and Widefield, in the Canon City Tournament will meet in the morning session at 10 a.m.

Denver May Lose Rights As AAU Tournament Host

DENVER (UPI)—Denver appeared doomed today in its desire to continue hosting the National AAU basketball tournament today.

Special tournament committeeman G. Russell Lyons of Boulder, Colo., said the total loss from this year's meet, hadn't been tallied yet, but added "I just don't see how the tournament can be kept in Denver unless you could come up with a sponsor to back a home town team and thus generate some enthusiasm leading into the meet."

Denver has been host 28 years. The three-day, 57th annual meet ended Wednesday night with the Goodyear Wingfoots of Akron, Ohio, winning their first title in 50 years by defeating in a week.

Philips, 66 of Bartlesville, Okla., 86-78.

But only about 12,000 fans turned out during the meet, and it appeared a loss of $5,000 was likely.

Denver had a hastily-put-together team in the tourney. Sponsored by Capitol Federal Savings, however, Lyons said, "you've got to have a home town team the year around to hope to keep the kind of interest which you must have to make the National AAU Tournament a success."

Tournament Chairman Willard N. Greum agreed, and said "I've heard no talk about Denver sponsor nor has anyone contacted me in this regard."

He said a decision regarding next year's site should be made in 50 years by defeating in a week.

Liston, Jones Are Missing From Elimination Lineup

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission has rounded up four men who say they are willing to fight it out to see which one should face Cassius Clay for the heavyweight title in September or October.

Noticeably missing is the man who refused to fall in the round Cassius called. That's Doug Jones.

Also absent is Sonny Liston, who has been refused a New York license.

Present are former champion Floyd Patterson, plus Cleveland Williams of Houston, Eddie Machen of San Francisco and Ernie Terrell of Chicago.

Nothing has been signed. And it is a long way between the talk and the bell, but if plans work out Patterson will fight Williams and Machen will meet Terrell before June.

Then the winners will fight, with the winner of that one going against Cassius in New York in September or October.

Harry Markson, director of boxing at Madison Square Garden, said he had already made an offer to Patterson and Williams for a fight around June 22. He said he would like to make the Machen-Terrell fight in May.

Jones was invited to participate in the elimination tournament but declined. Ranked No. 1 by the World Boxing Association Jones said "I already have earned the right to fight Clay."

He said he thought he had won the 10-round fight with Cassius at Madison Square Garden a year ago. Cassius got the widely disputed verdict, after predicting that Jones would fall in five, or so.

Jones is ranked No. 2 by Ring right behind Liston, who is not ranked by the WBA.

Two other boxers, Zora Foley and Harold Johnson, tried to get into the elimination picture, but the commission turned them down.

Donaldson Boosts Bucks In Playoffs

By United Press International
Bad boy Mike Donaldson has regained his scoring eye and Portland's hopes in the Western Hockey League playoffs are looking brighter today.

Donaldson's performance during the regular season was distinguished only by the fact that he spent 226 minutes sitting in the penalty box, more than any other player in league history.

Before Thursday night you would have had to go back to Oct. 16 to find a Portland scoring summary in which Donaldson was credited with a goal. But Donaldson broke his scoring drought at 4:24 of the first period Thursday night and started the Buckaroos to a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Seals.

That left both Portland and San Francisco with 1-1 records in their best-of-seven first round playoff series.

Tom McCarthy added a goal for Portland at 6:22 and gave the Buckaroos a 2-0 lead after the first period.

The Seals came back quickly in the second period and tied the score when Gerry Brisson slammed home two goals in less than two minutes. But that ended San Francisco's scoring for the night.

All four teams in the WHL playoffs are idle today. The action in the Seals-Buckaroos series shifts Saturday to the San Francisco Cow Palace and will stay there for the next three games.

Denver and Los Angeles resume their series at Denver Saturday night before traveling to Los Angeles for three games. Los Angeles holds a 1-0 edge in that series after scoring a surprising 7-3 win Wednesday night.

Roseboro Sidelined For Two Weeks

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dodger catcher John Roseboro has calcium deposits in his right knee and will be out of action until at least April 9, a team physician said Thursday.

CAGE COACHES HUNTING JOBS—Marquette University's Eddie Hickey (left) and Dick Harp of the University of Kansas were both hunting new jobs today after leaving their positions on Thursday. Hickey was notified that his contract as coach and athletic director will not be renewed. His team had a disastrous 5-21 record last season, including a 15-game losing streak. Harp resigned his post effective July 1, after coming to Kansas as an assistant coach in the 1948-49 season. He has been head coach of the Jayhawks since 1956.

Kansas Coaching Job Open

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Ralph Miller of Wichita and Ted Owens, Kansas assistant, are running neck-and-neck among Kansas alumni for the head basketball coaching job resigned by Dick Harp Thursday.

This doesn't mean either one is certain to get the job. Miller is a prime candidate for the vacancy at Iowa and is visiting there today.

The decision will be made by the Athletic Board, Chancellor W. Clarke Wescoe and the new athletic director, Wade Stinson. They have made no decision about their next step. The Athletic Board won't act formally on Harp's resignation until April 16.

Harp's resignation wasn't unexpected. He had considered leaving coaching in recent years and decided this was a good time to make the move because Kansas prospects are bright. He announced no future plans.

Hawks-Lakers Fifth Game Set Monday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The St. Louis Hawks will host the fifth game, if necessary, in their National Basketball Association Western Division semifinal playoff series with the Los Angeles Lakers on Monday night, March 30, instead of Sunday, March 29, as previously announced.

The Hawks, who hold a 2-1 edge in the series, meet the Lakers Saturday night in Los Angeles in the fourth game.

Oklahoma State Leads NCAA Wrestling Tourney

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—The old spring pastime of trying to overtake the Oklahoma State wrestlers is in high gear again. As the 34th NCAA tournament moved into the quarter-finals Friday afternoon at Cornell University, Coach Myron Roderick's Cowboys appeared to be running well ahead and only a minority of a large field seemed poised to do much about it.

The only teams that could keep Oklahoma State from a 24th championship by the time the curtain falls on Saturday night are Iowa State University and the University of Oklahoma.

The Cowboys had 19 points after two rounds and still had an excellent scoring potential with eight men remaining in the 10 weight classes. Iowa State and Oklahoma, who both have 12 points, also have six survivors apiece.

Three former champions also have designs on repeating. Dean Lahr, 177-pounder from the University of Colorado, will go up against Robert Hamrah of Yale today.

Jim Nance, Syracuse husky, who has won 78 straight bouts since his only loss as a schoolboy at Indiana, Pa., next encounters Bob Billberg of Moorhead, Minn. State, who won the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament last week.

Jack Flasche of Colorado State College, who won in 1962 but who wasn't in competition last year, will try to advance against William Lam of Oklahoma University.

The big surprise of Friday night's second round was in the 130-pound class when Ted Lanky of Pennsylvania defeated Norman Parker of Iowa, 9-7. Only last week Parker won the Big Ten's outstanding wrestler award. Lanky placed third in the Easterns.

James Hanson, Colorado sophomore, provided the first bit of upset of the wrestling tournament by defeating Mike Johnson, top-seeded Pittsburgh 130-pounder, 7-4.

Marquette Dismisses Cage Coach

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Marquette University, which put all of its athletic eggs into basketball four years ago, was looking for a new athletic director and cage coach today after the dismissal of Eddie Hickey.

Hickey, the 61-year-old out-spoken "Little General" who has won or directed his teams to most of basketball's top honors since he began coaching in 1927, said he was not ready or prepared for retirement.

Hickey was turned out after the poorest season in his coaching career and after the worst record since Marquette began basketball in 1917. The Warriors had a 5-21 record and lost 15 in a row before closing the season with a victory.

Hickey, who had a 90-72 record in six seasons at Marquette, also coached at Creighton and St. Louis University, where his teams had a combined record of 444 victories against 139 defeats.

Olson-Wayne Bout Over TV Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ranking light-heavyweights Carl Olson and Irish Wayne Thornton don't expect any trouble catching each other when they meet tonight in their 18-round nationally televised boxing match at Kezar Pavilion.

The winner may get a title fight in San Francisco in May or June, thus providing plenty of incentive.

"He comes in," says Olson of Thornton, "You don't have to go looking for him."

Olson's style is a willing one and he comes to fight," says Thornton. The Fresno, Calif., boxer who was a preliminary 359 consecutive games from 1952 to 1958 without starting a single one.

Collegians Bolster Hopes For Olympic Swim Team

By LOU BLACK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—How will America's swimmers do in the Tokyo Olympics next October?

It's still seven months away, but Olympic Coach Jim Counsilman says he can hardly wait after seeing some top prospects blister the Yale pool Thursday.

The tall, bald Counsilman was smiling as the collegians opened the three-day annual NCAA swimming and diving championships by breaking one American and four NCAA records in four races.

The record-wrecking was expected to continue today in five tests, all over the 200-yard distance, including the freestyle where Yale's Steve Clark and Southern California's Roy Saari may collide.

Both figured big in Thursday's assault on the standards. Saari, 19-year-old sophomore, won the 500-yard freestyle in 4:45.8, bettering the old mark of 4:40.7 set last year by John Konrad, the Australian Olympian.

Clark shattered the 50-yard sprint record by leading the qualifiers in 26.9 seconds, but lost by a shade to his teammate, Mike Austin in the final.

The old NCAA record was 21 seconds posted in 1963 by Steve Jackman while at Minnesota. The other record-breaking performances were registered by Southern California's 400-yard medley relay team. Bob Bennett who swam the opening leg in that race and Dick McGrath, another Trojan, who won the 400-yard individual medley.

The Southern Cal team nosed out Yale in the medley relay in 3:30.9 for the new NCAA record and Bennett lowered the American 100-yard backstroke mark with a 53.2 in his leadoff leg.

Clay Put Money Aside To Gain Shot at Crown

By LARRY OSIUS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Heavy-

weight boxing champion Cassius Clay had to agree to put half of his purse from his fight with Sonny Liston—some $225,000—in escrow in order to get a crack at the former champion, an attorney has testified.

Gordon B. Davidson, attorney for a Louisville, Ky. group sponsoring Clay told the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee Thursday.

We didn't like it, we don't like it, but we had to swallow it," because Clay wanted to fight for the title.

Clay won the championship in the Feb. 25 match at Miami when Liston failed to answer the bell in the seventh round. The committee has been taking testimony for three days about arrangements concerning the fight and will resume hearings Monday.

Davidson said Liston, when he was challenging former champion Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight title, had to agree to a rematch promoted by a firm selected by Patterson and also had to post half of his purse from the first fight as a guarantee he would give Patterson a rematch.

When backing of Liston, after he stopped Patterson in the first round of both fights, no negotiations with Clay, Davidson said, they insisted on a similar clause in the contract, although the past did not seem to call for a rematch. It required that half of Clay's purse would be placed in escrow and that a group of which Liston was a member would have the right to promote the match.

Davidson said the rematch agreement was in second round fight, kept secret until after the Miami fight.

This was the deal they had to swallow to get a fight with Patterson and they were going to make the next guy swallow it, the attorney said.

Davidson said Clay received $50,000 in expenses for agreeing to take International Boxing Promotions, Inc., the firm in which Liston is a shareholder, the right to promote Clay's first championship fight and to name his opponent.

About the secret rematch agreement Davidson said, "I'm not sure about the legality of this provision, and I still don't like it. I don't think we would have agreed to it except that Clay wanted to fight for the title and this was the only way he could do it."

The World Boxing Association prohibits rematch clauses in contracts.

Rochester Posts AHL Victory Over Baltimore

By United Press International

The Rochester Americans seem to hold a strange power over the Baltimore Clippers, and they used it to their best advantage to pull into second place in the American Hockey League's tight Western Division today.

The Americans, who hold a season's lead of 8-1 after Thursday night's 2-1 victory over the Clippers, regained second position and moved within one point of the pace-setting Pittsburgh Hornets.

Pittsburgh, Rochester, and Cleveland have two weekend games left and the outcome of the title still remains a toss-up. Lou Angotti and Wally Boyer scored both Rochester goals and veteran Dick Gamble required an assist on each tally. No other games were played Thursday night.

4 -- The Grip

Most people don't realize it, but the primary difference between a good golfer and a bad one lies in the grip—probably the most basic element of any player's game.

Without a sound grip, your chances of ever becoming a good golfer are quite remote.

There are several ways to hold a golf club. For instance, the 10-finger grip—also sometimes tagged the baseball grip—finds all fingers on the club with the thumb of the left hand snuggling into the palm of the right.

Until two weeks before the 1952 U.S. Open, I employed the overlapping grip. This grip finds the little finger of the right hand lapping over the forefinger of the left.

Then one day I hit a few shots using the interlocking grip which found the forefinger of my left hand lying over and locking with the little finger of my lower hand. This grip felt so good to me that I used it in the Open—where I won.

I stayed with the interlocking grip until 1960. Then, my knuckles and fingers began

It's often been said that Mickey Mantle on one leg is better than most players on two, but even Mantle himself might not care to speculate how good he would be without that one good leg.

Actually, the leg—the left one—isn't that good, and that's what has the New York Yankee superstar worried.

"I was running real good when I came down here, but I haven't been running good the last couple of days," Mantle said Thursday after missing his second straight exhibition game.

Manager Yogi Berra had planned on using the switch-hitting center fielder against the Mets and even had his name on the line-up card. But Mantle asked for another day of rest, saying his left knee was troubling him.

The left knee is the one which was operated on during the winter for torn cartilage. He has had recurring problems with his right knee since he twisted it as a rookie in 1951.

Mantle, who played in only 40 per cent of the Yankees' games in 1963 and 58 per cent the past two seasons, started in the first 11 spring games but departed after the early innings. He has five hits in 19 times at bat, has scored one run and driven in two.

Until the past few days, he had not been bandaging his legs before games. Now he's reverted to that precautionary practice.

He said Thursday the left knee hurts where the cartilage was removed.

"I got hit by Siebern the first game we played," Mantle said, referring to Norm Siebern's line drive that struck him on the side of the knee. "The darned thing hit right near the operation, and now it's hurting. Doc says it's just a bone bruise. I hope it's all it is."

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, the team physician, said the knee had healed completely before Mantle came to camp, and no weakness exists.

Mantle's replacement in the game with the Mets, Hector Lopez, drove in both of the Yankees' runs in their 2-1 victory. That evened the spring series between the teams.

In other games, Washington won its fourth straight game, 9-3 over Pittsburgh. Bob Chance's grand slam home run powered Cleveland to a 9-8 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Kansas City downed the Chicago White Sox 10-6. The Chicago Cubs won a 15-inning game with Boston 10-8 and Milwaukee ran its winning streak to six, beating Cincinnati 4-1.

The games between Baltimore and Minnesota and St. Louis and Philadelphia were washed out after they got started.

want to drive the world's leading rally winner?

If you don't keep up with international rallies like England's RAC and the Classic Monte Carlo, you may not appreciate how solidly built a car must be to stand up to these tortuous endurance runs. SAAB does, year after year... and wins. Because of its unusual 2 stroke engine/front wheel drive power system, SAAB consistently beats larger, more powerful cars. SAAB—a 5-passenger family sedan, not a sports car—takes more rally wins than any car in the world.

Needless to say, it performs like nothing else on the road. So come on in and test-drive a 1964 SAAB. You just can't believe people still take the trouble to build a car as great as this one.

Bucs Hope to Make Amends For Showing in '63 Race

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI)—There were a number of others who didn't perform up to the standard anticipated for the Pittsburgh Pirates are perfectly willing to forgive and forget — forgive some of their newcomers for not coming through immediately and forget all about last year.

Pittsburgh tumbled all the way to eighth place last season in the first year of its rebuilding program, only because a number of players counted upon to come through fell short of the mark.

It was quite a comedown from the Pirate glory days of 1960, when they won the National League pennant and went on to take the World Series from the New York Yankees.

The Pirate fortunes ebbed after that, so finally after the 1962 season, when Pittsburgh finished fourth, they made their big move. It turned out to be disastrous.

The Pirates disposed of three fourths of their 1960 championship infield. Donn Clemenon at first base was a disappointment as a fill-in for Dick Stuart, who went to the Boston Red Sox and wound up winning the runs batted in championship of the American League with 118; Dick Schofield 20-1 below expectations in taking over for shortstop Dick Groat, who had an outstanding year for the St. Louis Cardinals; and rookie third baseman Bob Bailey was anything but the sensation he was tagged to be when the Pirates let Don Hoak go to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Freeze and Gene Alley a shot at left field.

Murtaugh admits catching could be a problem.

He plans using the aging Smoky Burgess in "only one or two games a week" so he can have his big left handed bat on the bench. That leaves the No. 1 job open to another 1963 let-down, Jim Pagliarini, part of the Red Sox payment for Stuart. Behind them, fighting for the third job, are Ron Brand, Orlando McFarlane and Elmo Plasket. It falls far short of being an all-star catching trio.

When it comes to pitching, Murtaugh's face lights up.

"The only thing we might need," he said, emphasizing "might," "is a left handed relief pitcher."

"We have outstanding pitching depth," he claims. "A lot of things killed us last year but pitching wasn't one of them."

For starters there are left handers Bob Veale (5-2) and Joe Gibbon (5-12) and right handers Bob Friend (17-16), Don Cardwell (13-15) and Don Schwall (6-12).

Stargell is going to get every opportunity to be our regular left fielder and I think he will make it and hit from 25 to 35 home runs for us," Murtaugh contends.

But then he let one cat out of the bag—he said he also was going to give his three third base candidates, Bailey, Gene

Wally Moon Still Rebels At Being Platoon Player

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Wally Moon is the last of the mavericks. A pawn in Manager Walter Alston's platoon pattern, the Los Angeles Dodger outfielder constantly rebels at being a part time player.

"I'm a better ball player when I'm in there every day," he keeps telling his manager. But Alston, unmindful of the veteran's plea, continues to play the left-handed hitting Moon in spots, usually against the stronger right-handed pitchers.

"I am not criticizing the skipper's policy," said Moon. "In fact, his two - platooning has proved very successful. And I'm sure it's helped certain players. But not me. The best year I've ever had was in 1961, when I played against all types of pitching. I batted 328 that season and drove in 88 runs."

In the past two years, Moon has had to share the right field berth with Frank Howard.

"I've never had any trouble hitting left-handers," said Moon. "I got one chance to play regularly last year. That was for a month from the middle of June to the middle of July. I played in 30 straight games, against both left and right-handed pitching and I batted around .350."

Moon got little opportunity to play after that because Howard got hot, hitting 15 of his 28 homers after the All - Star break. Wally finished the season with .262 but owns a 291 lifetime batting average through 10 years.

Canadiens, Hawks Net NHL Playoff Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You won't find Frank Udvari's name listed in any team line-up. Nevertheless he took the limelight Thursday night in the opening of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal playoffs.

Udvari is a referee and his whistle blowing set two Stanley Cup playoff records and equalled two others as the Montreal Canadiens beat Toronto 2-0. He handed out a record 16 penalties in the first period and a record total of 31 in the rough game before 13,934 at Montreal.

In contrast only 11 penalties were assessed at Chicago where the Black Hawks exploded for three goals in the last period to whip Detroit 4-1.

Included in the record 31 total was a bench penalty against Montreal for having too many men on the ice and one against Claude Provost late in the game for an illegal takeoff procedure.

Provost was made in the dressing room over this call, disregarding his assists on both of Montreal's goals. He passed to Boom-Boom Geoffrion for the first one at 6:53 of the opening period and did likewise to Ralph Backstrom at 9:32 of the second period. Meantime goalie Charlie Hodge had little trouble registering his fifth shutout of the season against the Leafs.

Andre Pronovost put Detroit ahead at 12:16 of the first period before 15,897 at Chicago, but Al McDonald tied the score 30 seconds later.

It stayed 1-1 until Pierre Plante slammed home a 20-footer at 6:42 of the last period. Murray Balfour and Stan Mikita tallied the last two goals for the Black Hawks.

Missouri's defending champs and Oklahoma State took their first defeats of the young season and Kansas State scored its first victory in Big Eight baseball Thursday.

TCU collected only two hits and Missouri made just one error but all came in a two-run sixth inning for a 3-2 TCU victory at Fort Worth. Missouri (1-1) plays at Baylor today and Saturday.

Houston tagged three Oklahoma State pitchers for 10 hits and an 8-2 victory. Kurt Kastner, OSU starter, left in the sixth with Houston ahead 4-1. Oklahoma State still leads 2-1 in their four-game series, which ends today.

K-State beat Delta State 8-3 at Cleveland, Miss., for the first victory in three games on their tour. Robert Stauff, a right-hander, and Carroll Howard, a lefty, combined for a four-hit performance.

K-State finishes the trip with a two-game series at Arkansas State today and Saturday.

Oklahoma has finished non-conference play with a 4-2 record and the Big Eight teams have an 8-4 mark with four teams still looking forward to their season openers.

Colorado opens with a two-game series with Texas Western at El Paso today and Saturday. Nebraska opens at Tulsa Saturday then plays at Texas Lutheran Monday before a four-game series at Houston, April 14.

Kansas will play its six non-league games in a seven-day span, all in Texas, starting with Randolph Air Force Base April 1 at San Antonio. Iowa State opens with two doubleheaders in two days, April 3-4, with Minnesota at Ames.

Kansas City (AP)—The NCAA said today top college basketball players should be under no obligation to participate in a tour of Russia, Italy and Yugoslavia and the trip should have no bearing on selection of the United States Olympic basketball team.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the NCAA "wishes to make certain there be no pressure, official or implied, that willingness to make the tour has any relationship to Olympic team selection of collegiate players."

At the same time, the NCAA said Henry P. Iba, coach of the Olympic team, disclosed in Lexington, Ky., that he declined an invitation to coach the tour team because of prior commitments, and reservations he has about the worth of the trip.

The tour, sponsored by the State Department, was announced March 7. It starts April 18, with eight games in Russia, two in Yugoslavia and two in Italy. The U.S. Olympic basketball trials are set for April 24 at St. John's University, Jamaica, N.Y.

Darrell Browning, the Huskies' pitching mainstay, was recorded with the victory. He received help at the plate from Rodney Irvine, who tallied 4 RBIs. David Zamarripa collected three hits for four times at bat to lead the Florence team in that department.

Auerback Says Partial Job Is Fault of Many Coaches

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—Red Auerback is a man of immense energy who maintains many basketball coaches do an incomplete job.

"A coach is mistaken if he thinks he can leave the game on the court and in the dressing room," says the most successful drill-master in National Basketball Association history.

"A winning athlete is a happy man," explains the boss of the Boston Celtics. "Players have problems like everyone else — finances, a coming baby, good education for their kids, a future after playing."

"That's why I'm in my office every day when we're home, even if there isn't a game. The boys know I'm available. I've been consulted on everything from investment possibilities to morning sickness."

The father of teen-age daughters, Auerback leaves his family in their Washington, D.C., home during the season "because the suitcase-hotel room-airplane life wouldn't be fair to them."

In business, Auerback is an executive of a packaging concern and runs a summer camp. At 47 Red admits he's getting tired of the hectic pace but has not yet found anything to take the place of the game he loves.

Red is all business about the job of directing the champion Celtics, even solemn. Yet he has an infectious sense of humor. But the Auerback many fans know best is the man of instant anger who leaps off the bench, stomps on the floor and shouts at officials.

Although it appears he may be referring to a referee's ancestry, Auerback says he's only demanding fair calls.

Auerback is his own chief talent scout who carries much of his basketball empire in mental notes. He is also a realist.

"One of my hobbies is helping youngsters get into college," admits Red. "I've had some success and it's a nice feeling."

"Hey, you better not print that. They might think I'm human."

American Opera Singer Freed

BERLIN (AP) — Gabrielle Dr. Gertrude Rosenhain, of Hammett, a New York singer-jazz pianist, has been released from prison in Communist East Germany, a U.S. spokesman announced today.

Miss Hammerstein, 39, a Wagnerian soprano, was sentenced to six years in jail as a spy by an East German court in August 1962.

The U.S. announcement said Miss Hammerstein was freed before the end of her term as the result of a clemency appeal made by her family.

The clemency presumably was granted by Walter Ulbricht, the Communist leader of East Germany. Such appeals in Communist countries are generally referred to the head of state.

Miss Hammerstein, a striking redhead, was imprisoned at Colditz, reports reaching the West recently indicated she was in ill health, which may have contributed to her release.

Split Tanker Taken in Tow By Ocean Tug

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The severed stern of the tanker San Jacinto, wallowing at the end of a tow rope, inched toward port today with 35 crewmen who spurned rescue to stay with their ship.

Just after midnight, the seagoing tug Lambert's Point and its pitching, yawing charge still were more than 100 miles from their destination, Newport News. Their speed was three knots.

But the Coast Guard said the San Jacinto's stern was riding well in six-foot seas and was in no immediate danger. Barring bad weather, tug and tow are expected in harbor about noon Saturday.

The American tanker, steaming south off of Chincoteague Island in the Atlantic, snapped in half early Wednesday, when rocked by an explosion as its cargo tanks were being cleaned.

One crewman died—of natural causes, physicians said—on board a rescue ship, the Mobil Pegasus. The San Jacinto's radio officer also went aboard the Mobil Pegasus.

Others aboard the tanker joined its master, Capt. Harold J. Titus, 39, of Pine City, N.Y., in declining an offer to go aboard the Navy command ship Northampton Wednesday.

Another tug, the Tern, reached

Wintry Weather Spreads Through Wide U.S. Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wintry-like weather with cold, snow and icy winds spread across broad areas in the eastern half of the nation today, one week after the start of the spring season.

The core of the cold air centered in the north central region but the chilly blasts extended southward into Oklahoma, Kentucky, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Below zero weather was reported in sections of the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan. One of the low marks was 7 below in International Falls, Minn.

In Green Bay, Wis., hit by a 10-inch snowfall Thursday, the mercury dropped to zero, a record low for March 27. Freezing temperatures were reported in much of the Midwest as well as in sections of the South and parts of the Northeast. Readings were near freezing in Atlanta.

Snow squalls and flurries whipped across the Great Lakes region and into northern New England.

There was a warming trend in the northern and central Rockies and in sections of the Plains.

Clear weather prevailed in most areas west of the Rockies with temperatures ranging from the 20s in the northern Rockies to the 50s in the Southwest. Highest marks in the 70s were reported in extreme southern Florida.

The governor also had called verses pose a threat to his bid for "strong and effective action" to tighten state laws designed to prevent conflicts of interest between the public and private activities of legislators. A compromise measure was passed but Rockefeller has not indicated whether it met his standards. Within minutes after adjournment, the governor called a news conference and announced he was calling the special session April 15 for reconsideration of the rejection of his liquor-law proposals. He declined to say what else would be on the agenda. There were reports he would insist on a vote on repeal of the full-crew laws and consideration of a tougher ethics bill. Rockefeller told a news conference at 1:35 a.m. (ET): "The Legislature has adjourned without taking effective action on essential reforms of the state liquor laws. Accordingly, I am summoning the Legislature into special session to act on this subject." While complaining of lack of action on the liquor and full-crew issues, he said that many important and significant programs were acted on at this session or his recommendations. Highlights of legislation passed he said, were his bills to:

Allow grand juries to return to the centuries-old practice of issuing public reports that criticize the conduct of public officials, although no criminal charges are made.
Make it easier for police officers to execute search warrants and search suspicious individuals.
Extend the state's low-income housing program and establish a system of subsidies to enable low-income families to live in middle-income housing.
Reorganize the State Board of Social Welfare.
Give greater autonomy to the state university.
Increase the take-home pay of school teachers by reducing their contribution toward their pensions.
Increase state aid to education.
Rockefeller also stated that he had submitted for the sixth successive year, a balanced, pay as you go budget.

NEW FACE—The Times Tower, focal point of New York's Times Square since it was built in 1904, has been stripped of its concrete skin and is awaiting a new face and a new owner. Allied Chemical is paying for the refurbishing. And, yes, the wraparound news bulletin system which once captured the eye of the tourist, will return.

Historic Chicago Courthouse to Be Torn Down

By EARL AYKROID
CHICAGO (AP)—The setting for courtroom dramas that made headlines across the nation during the last half century lies in the path of the wrecker's hammer. Chicago's U.S. Courthouse, a structure that has been the stage for some of the nation's most important civil and criminal trials—as well as the scene of numerous suicides and the target of bombs—is being replaced by a 30-story steel and glass skyscraper. Dedicated by President William McKinley on Oct. 9, 1899, nearly six years before it was completed, the Roman Corinthian style courthouse, topped with a glass-tiled dome, is to be demolished as soon as the new building is completed, probably in late 1964. Another 30-story government building will go up on the present site. In the 39 years the courthouse has stood as a symbol of justice, federal judges and juries have deliberated over many cases of national interest. Among them:

In 1907 Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, later commissioner of baseball, fined Standard Oil Company of Indiana $29,240,000 for accepting freight rebates in violation of the antitrust law.
A dozen or more Western railroads went in and out of bankruptcy in the 1930s.
Al Capone's reign as king of Chicago's prohibition era underworld came to an end in October 1931 when Judge James H. Wilkerson sentenced him to 11 years in prison and fined him $50,000 for income tax evasion.

Capone served 7½ years and came out of prison a sick man. He died Jan. 25, 1947.
Judge John P. Barnes, a Republican, rose to fame for his rulings against New Deal legislation in the 1930s. He held in 1934 that the National Industrial Recovery Act was unconstitutional and the U.S. Supreme Court upheld his decision.
Judge Wilkerson presided at the 1934 trial of Samuel Insull, 75, the utilities magnate accused of defrauding investors of millions of dollars through sales of worthless stock. Insull controlled a utilities network valued at more than $4 billion and possessed a personal fortune estimated at $100 million before his empire collapsed. He once sat on the boards of 65 firms and was president of 11. His utilities network employed 6,000 units in 37 states and Canada which employed 75,000 persons and had 600,000 investors.
Insull fled to Turkey after the collapse of his companies but was brought back to stand trial for mail fraud.
His trial lasted eight weeks and resulted in his acquittal. He died penniless in Paris in 1938 at 79.

Six relatives and friends of Nazi saboteur Herbert Haupt were tried and convicted in 1942 before Judge William J. Campbell in Illinois' first treason trial.
Haupt was one of eight Nazi saboteurs apprehended in this country after being put ashore by German submarines off the East Coast during World War II.

Haupt's parents, Hans and Erna Haupt, and two other married couples were brought to trial in Chicago on charges of giving "aid and comfort" to the young saboteur. All were convicted.
The three men were sentenced to die; their wives to serve 25 years in prison.
The defendants appealed and won a new trial. Convicted a second time, Hans Haupt was sentenced to prison for life. His male codefendants pleaded guilty and drew sentences of five years in prison. The three women were freed.
Haupt spent 13 years in prison. President Eisenhower commuted his sentence to the time already served and Haupt was deported to his native Germany.
In 1965 Judge Barnes sentenced Orville Hodge, former Republican Illinois state auditor, to 20 years in prison after Hodge pleaded guilty to mishandling $372,000 in federally insured bank funds while he was auditor.
His federal sentence was served concurrently with a state sentence he received as a result of charges that he embezzled more than $1.5 million of state funds during his tenure as auditor. Hodge was pardoned in March 1963 after serving 6½ years in the Illinois Penitentiary.

Municipal Judge Grants Jail Sentence Suspension

Attorney Alfred Cox was granted a suspension Thursday in Municipal Court on a jail sentence imposed against his client Larry Kline by Judge Asher in a hearing last week. Kline had been found guilty of reckless driving and fined $100, plus given a 5-day jail sentence.

Judge Asher stipulated the sentence would be suspended on condition that Kline, 20, 420 N. Franklin St., not be involved in a moving violation for the remainder of the year, and that he would not drive in the city for a period of 15 days.

Kline changed his plea to guilty to a speeding charge and was fined $15.

Ira Richardson, 31, 625 E. Fort Worth St., failed to appear in court when his case was called. Judge Asher took testimony from Cpl. C. J. Cates, found the man guilty of reckless driving, imposed a $50 fine and ordered a writ of execution be issued.

He dismissed a careless driving charge and a damage to city property charge against the man, who appeared in court after Cates had left.

Ronald Paige, 25, 326 E. Colorado Ave., asked for a continuance of his trial on a careless driving charge, explaining that his witnesses had to work.

The judge granted his request, naming April 2 for his trial. Testimony was taken, however, from the arresting officer Richard Anderson, to save him a return trip to court next week.

Lonie Seymour, 28, 505 N. Pine St., pleaded not guilty to charges of riotous conduct and breach of peace. Judge Asher ordered his release from city jail without bond on Seymour's promise to return to court April 20.

Man Fined on Traffic Count; Held on Assault

A man who has been charged in District Court with assault with a deadly weapon was fined $20 and costs by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane Thursday for reckless driving.

Louis S. Balliet, 28, 612 N. Walnut St., was ticketed March 21 on Harrison Road by State Patrolman Pete Thiel.

His arrest followed a wild chase by members of the sheriff's office. Balliet is alleged to have shot Duane Weldon Ruedell through the leg with a bullet from a .45 caliber revolver and then escaped in his car.

He is currently in county jail and bond has been set at $10,000.

Other cases heard by Judge McShane included: Steven M. Stiefel, 17, 731 Crown Ridge Dr. charged with following too closely on Nevada Avenue March 19. The state patrolman was N. Boals and the defendant paid a $15 fine and costs.

Failing to yield the right of way on Fillmore Street Tuesday cost James Robert Branam, 16, 3501 Corbett Lane $10 and costs. The officer was Ken Shifflet of the state patrol.

State Patrolman J. E. McDaniel ticketed Jake Floyd Spahn, 33, of Denver for misuse of plates March 20. The incident happened at the north entrance to the Air Force Academy and Spahn was fined $10 and costs.

Lola Landess Hill, 55, 141 E. Navajo St. was fined $10 and costs for careless driving. State Patrolman ticketed the defendant on South Nevada Avenue Wednesday.

Boston Shaken By Scandal in State Police

By CHARLES T. BURNS
BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Endicott Peabody is acting to suspend the head of the Massachusetts State Police indicted on charges including conspiracy and larceny.

Peabody told a news conference Thursday night it appeared there are legal grounds for me to suspend Public Safety Commissioner Frank S. Giles, 48, former Republican floor leader in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

"However, to insure the commissioner's basic rights," he said, "we are asking the attorney general to give us a ruling on the matter. If his ruling concurs with that of my legal counsel, we shall suspend Commissioner Giles forthwith."

Giles was indicted Wednesday by an Essex County Grand jury on 38 counts of conspiracy, larceny, aiding and abetting in filing false reports and violation of the conflict of interest law.

The commissioner earlier Thursday announced he would ask for a leave of absence without pay until court action in the case was complete.

Peabody said suspension would protect Giles' rights better than a leave of absence. He explained that Giles would receive back pay should he be cleared of the charges.

The governor, a Democrat, declined comment on charges by Giles that the indictments were politically motivated.

Atty. Gen. Edward W. Brooke, also a Republican, said the offenses charged in the indictments did not involve State Police activities. He said they covered a period from 1958 to 1962.

Giles was appointed in 1961 by former Gov. John A. Volpe, a Republican.

Four other persons, including Giles' administrative assistant, also were indicted on testimony submitted by the Massachusetts Crime Commission.

Giles said in a news conference there had been published reports that a leading Republican had been indicted.

Press at 'Finest Hour' During Assassination

NEW YORK (AP) — Wes Gallagher, general manager of The Associated Press, said in his annual report today that the assassination of President Kennedy "saw the press rise to its finest hour in keeping the world informed."

Gallagher said news coverage of the tragedy "demanded the best in everyone and it received the best."

The Associated Press and its members threw more resource into the coverage of the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy than any single news event in its history, Gallagher said.

The report, noting a net gain of 727 newspapers and broadcasters receiving AP news around the world, was mailed to members in advance of The Associated Press annual meeting here April 20. President Johnson will be the principal speaker.

Gallagher's report dealt in part with some critics who attacked the press for its coverage of the assassination and funeral.

Criticism revolved around the mass reporting of reporters, cameramen and broadcasters the relatively quick designation of Lee Harvey Oswald as the accused assassin and Oswald's own murder a few hours later, he said.

"Mass reporting of some major news events is becoming so unruly that it puts all media in a bad light. The profession badly needs a solution and is groping for one."

"This should not obscure the basic fact, however, that at the time of the assassination the nation demanded and needed to know every detail of the events in Dallas and Washington. The quick identification of Oswald and his background shut off rumors which could have fueled ideological hatreds to the point of possible violence."

Gallagher said all media met the challenge of supplying answers to questions quickly and accurately.

"Legal critics who sought to treat the death of a president in the same framework as an ordinary murder ignored the realities of the situation," he said.

"Nor should the press be asked to share the blame when lax police work made it possible for an outsider to kill Oswald."

Gallagher noted that a team of Associated Press writers and editors captured the drama of the death of the President in a book, "The Torch Is Passed," which was offered to readers by more than 700 AP members.

"The members sold three million copies in the United States and abroad it has been reprinted in Danish, Swedish, Dutch, Italian, Japanese, Korean and Spanish," he said.

Referring to Viet Nam, which he called the biggest story in the foreign field, Gallagher said events bore out the day to day reporting by the AP.

"During the year," he said, "some reporters and columnists who flew into Viet Nam for a couple of weeks, raised questions and insinuations about the repertorial and analytical ability of the resident correspondents. While much of the criticism was not directly aimed at AP coverage, it tended to draw up an indictment against all correspondents regularly based there."

"Subsequent events, including overthrow of the Diem government and instability of its successor, bore out the day to day reporting of our men on the spot."

Gallagher said that while the Kennedy assassination overshadowed all other news events, ways the AP expects to take advantage of the opportunities are indicated by these developments in the past year.

1. Improvement of the news and photo services through critical examination by special task forces of AP editors of newspaper and broadcast wires, and an intensive photo conference of AP photo editors and experts.

2. New technical advances, notably the use of AP's computer system—the only one in the press association field—to produce textual matter for the news wires, in addition to its original function of tabulating stock market transactions.

3. Sharp increase in contributions to the news report by AP's ever-growing membership among broadcast stations.

"New assignments were made, especially on the general desk in New York, giving AP editors the time and responsibility to plan ahead and to develop suggestions for enterprise copy," he said.

"Those assigned to such responsibility follow the world and domestic news for the purpose of spotting areas that need backgrounding and explanation beyond the spot handling. They also suggest related and follow-up coverage."

"Photo subscribers at home and abroad grew by 440 as Wirephoto turned in its greatest margin of news superiority over its competitors in history."

"In world services the most notable gains were in Latin America."

Gallagher said that in his visits to members in 35 states during the year he found a greater interest than ever in new methods of handling news.

"This decade is certain to see more changes in our profession than have taken place in the first half of this century," he said. "This is a healthy climate for The Associated Press and its members and a great opportunity for us all. The Associated Press aims to be in the forefront of those changes."

QUESTION: Don't you believe that most of our problems would be solved if we all observed the 'law of love'?

If we could get rid of hatred, and put love in its place, this world would be a good place to be in. Don't YOU AGREE?

—A. B.

ANSWER: In a recent survey it was found that eight out of ten Americans agree with you — that most of our major problems could be solved if we could somehow apply the Golden Rule. But an interesting finding came out of the same survey — eight out of ten Americans questioned thought they were living by the law of love. You see, we think the trouble is with the other fellow.

I agree if we all exercised the 'law of Love' that many of our problems could be solved. But, the difficulty is: if God, who is Love, is not in our hearts, then we can hardly expect to manifest His love. Our natures need to be changed before the world can be changed. God's love needs to be allowed to flood our hearts, and then hatred, prejudice, and illwill will be crowded out.

Captain Tells About Ship Explosion

By KENNETH RAPPOPORT
PAULSBORO, N.J. (AP) — I felt shock waves, but I knew it wasn't our ship. The sound was too far away."

That was the first reaction from Klaus Gunther, captain of the rescue ship Mobil Pegasus, some five miles away when an explosion tore the tanker San Jacinto in half early Thursday in the Atlantic Ocean about 40 miles off the Virginia Coast.

Gunther described the scene late Thursday night as his ship arrived in this Delaware River tanker moorage with two crewmen, one dead, off the ill-fated San Jacinto.

Radio Operator Wilbert Bock 40, was greeted at the port by his wife, Marian, 37, and son, Nicholas, 15. Also on board was the body of Martin Dotilla, the San Jacinto's chief steward, who died, apparently of a heart attack, while being transferred to the rescue ship.

The two men carried the ship's documents to safety. Thirty-five other crewmen aboard the tanker are being towed to Newport News, Va.

My third officer, Heinz Boettcher, was on the bridge when it happened. I ran upstairs and at the right front of my ship about five miles away, I could see someone signalling with a flashlight in Morse code. "Send SOS for me," Gunther related.

He said he moved his ship toward the signal and when he was about one mile away, he could see "a huge hole about 40 feet long, in a rectangular shape, in the middle of the ship."

Gunther said he immediately notified the Coast Guard in New York. "San Jacinto broken in two, Mobil Pegasus standing by."

Gunther messaged the San Jacinto and suggested that they dismiss all personnel not needed, but was told they wanted to stay aboard.

A little while after the first Coast Guard boat, the USS Raleigh, arrived at the scene, Bock and Dotilla were hoisted aboard the Mobil Pegasus.

Gunther said there was no sign of life in Dotilla, but they tried for 40 minutes to revive him before pronouncing him dead at 5:24 a.m.
